Get a Stroller That's Right for You

Juggling diaper bags, baby wipes and toys, not to mention a squirming youngster, is no easy feat for a new mom. That's why a stroller is a basic necessity. Since your baby will spend a lot of time in a stroller — usually up until he or she is 3 or 4 years of age — and you will spend a lot of time pushing it, carefully consider your needs and compare them with a stroller's key features before making a purchase. While there are many styles and types to choose from, the following key points will make it easier to narrow down your choices and make your shopping experience far less confusing than it could be.

Lifestyle — Active parents will need a sturdy model with good suspension and fixed-position, oversized wheels. Make frequent shopping trips? Choose models with fully independent wheels for the best maneuverability in malls and supermarkets. Do you usually travel by public transportation? Consider the stroller's size, weight and portability.

Space limitations/surrounding environment — Avoid struggles with the doorways of your home or the trunk of your car by measuring a stroller's length, folded and unfolded, before you buy. City dweller? Look for compactness and ease in maneuverability.

Child's age — For children under 3 years, look for strollers that fully recline. Lightweight models are the right choice for toddlers who can sit up on their own.

Budget — Think about features you absolutely need, and shop around with a budget in mind, but never sacrifice quality or safety when it comes to your baby.

STROLLER TYPES

Full-Size/Carriage — These are the largest, heaviest and most sturdy of all strollers because they provide the utmost in convenience and comfort. They convert from a carriage into a full-size stroller by reversing the handle, so they remain suitable for newborns and children up to 3 or 4 years old. Ideal for parents who walk outdoors year-round with their newborns, they offer a full-recline position and a removable weather boot for rain and cold-weather protection.

Midsized — Designed for portability, these models fold easily and compactly, and are perfect for city dwellers and those who enjoy longer walks outdoors. They feature a canopy, roomy storage basket, fully reclining seat, extendable handle and larger, all-terrain wheels.
