Donations mounting to aid hurricane victims

Donations for victims of Hurricane Katrina have been steadily coming into the North Halton Branch of the Canadian Red Cross office in Milton.

At press time, a spokesperson for the office could not provide a dollar figure for what has come in so far, but said, "a steady flow of donations are coming in at each of the (Halton) branches."

All money raised for the Hurricane Katrina appeal is going toward Red Cross efforts in the areas that have been devastated by the disaster.

In-kind donations of food, clothing or other items are not the best way to help the victims of the disaster due to transportation costs said a Red Cross spokesperson, so the best way to help, is by giving a monetary donation.
