New development for seniors

At last week's launch of The Gallery, a life-lease housing complex to be built on lands near the Bennett Centre, Halton Hills mayor Rick Bonnette was joined by (from left) Linda Dawson, past chair of the Bennett Centre Board, now Chair of Architecture, Sales and Marketing, former Bennett Centre chair Ernie Bodnar and current Bennett Centre chair Janet Duval, as they cut the cake kicking off advanced sales of units in the facility to be built and occupied by fall 2007. Sales information of The Gallery, which will be part of Bennett Village, is available at the sales office located in Georgetown Market Place.

Ward 3 Councillor Moya Johnson, chair of the Town's Accessibility Advisory Committee, said she'd like to see "our community move forward because we care about the people in our community and we'll find a way to do it as opposed to being forced," noting that the only other two municipalities to offer the service are York Region and the City of Toronto— after human rights complaints were launched.

The Town of Halton Hills installed a teletype machine last spring that will allow hearing impaired residents to communicate with town staff about services. The TTY number is 905-873-0644.
