Globe starts its season with adaptation of Tom Hanks movie

Georgetown Globe Productions' first musical of the 2005-2006 season is big: The Musical. Based on the 1987 movie, big, it won Tom Hanks a Best Actor Academy Award nomination in 1988.

The Broadway musical adaptation follows frustrated adolescent John Baskin (played by Marc Wilson) who wishes he were "big". The morning after he makes his wish to an arcade-wishing machine, he wakes to find he is 30 years old (adult Josh is played by Scott Carmichael). Turned out of the house by his parents who think he is a burglar and a kidnaper, he eventually makes his way to a toy store. There he meets George MacMillan (Norm Douglas), a toy company owner. Impressed by Josh's innocence and toy savvy, he offers him an executive position.

The adult Josh experiences an innocent first love with a female executive (Sonia Kats) and deals with the reality of adult office politics. This includes a jealous rival, played by Kevin Liley

Eventually, with the help of his 13-year-old friend Billy (Adam Norton), Josh realizes he needs to be a kid again and tracks down the "wish machine" to become a child again.

The show has a full cast of Globe veterans ably directed by the award winning (City of Angels and Crazy for You) Craig Marshall. Music director Myron DeSouza and choreographer Tia Mathieson round out the artistic team.

big: The Musical runs for seven performances only at the John Elliott Theatre. Evening performances, Nov 17, 18, 19, 24, 25 and 26 at 8 p.m. There is just one matinee performance on Sunday, Nov. 20 at 2 p.m.

Reserved tickets can be ordered with Visa or MasterCard from the box office, 905-877-3700. You may also purchase tickets in person from 2-6 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. The box office is also open one hour before each performance.

You can also win a big DVD and two tickets to opening night. See Jumbo Video in Georgetown for details and a ballot.

GIVE SAFETY A Green Light.

School is in session, and before you can say, "red light, green light, one...two...three", a child can dart out of nowhere, and get hurt. Please be prepared to stop and exercise extra caution when driving near playgrounds and schools.

Please Drive Carefully. Our Kids Are Depending On You.
