

Create your very own haunted house

Sew your pillowcase head onto the rest of your dummy body. You can either draw on a face or use coloured cloth and sew a face. If you would prefer, you can use a store-bought pumpkin head or a latex mask (using a styrofoam wig stand for support) for the head. You can also buy latex hands. Finally, decide where you are going to put your dummy and how you are going to display it.

Lighting, or the lack of it, helps set the mood for your Halloween event. Turn lights down, even completely off, and use candles for a spooky atmosphere. If you have young children coming in, you might want to skip the candles and substitute dark-coloured light bulbs instead.

Add other spooky things to make your house haunted. Make shrunken heads out of apples and place them around your house in unexpected places, such as kitchen chairs, the bottom of the snack bowl or overlooking the food.

Put some spooky Halloween music on the stereo. Make pipe cleaners and cotton balls into spiders and scatter those around the food and in chairs or hang them from the ceiling. Spread cobwebs you can purchase from party stores across the room. Be sure to place some of your pipe-cleaner spiders in the webs. Cover your furniture with white sheets and scatter talcum powder to create dust clouds when your guests move or sit. This will make it seem even more like a real, deserted haunted house.

Sometimes the best memories are the one of your first good scare on Halloween. Keeping that in mind, have a scary good time this year turning your home into a haunted house.
