Michaelson's work chosen for international art exhibition

The work of Glen Williams ceramic artist, Carol-Ann Michaelson, was selected to exhibit in the Joy of the Noble Teacup, International Chawan Exhibition in Belgium.

She was one of seven Canadian artists to have been selected for the jointly organized event by the Belgium and Japanese governments.

In addition to the exhibition, which opened at the St Bernardus Abbey, in Hemiksem, there will also be a symposium and demonstrations honouring the aesthetic of beauty in simplicity and harmony. The chawan, is an oriental tea bowl used in the formal and traditional Japanese tea ceremony. After the conference, Michaelson's work will tour around the country for four months.

One of the chawans in the exhibition.

Showing at Williams Mill

Williams Mill artist Christine Montague is wrapping up her one-person show and sale this week in the Gallery at Williams Mills as she shows off a large portrait of her son, which she recently painted. The show featured 14 digital photos and 15 large paintings. Montague has a studio at the Mill and takes landscape and portrait commissions working in both large format canvas, as well as smaller sizes.

Special concert of Remembrance on Sunday

Local singers are preparing for their annual Remembrance concert at Holy Cross Church. For many years the Georgetown Children's Chorus and the Georgetown Choral Society have joined the Georgetown Ministerial Association in presenting an evening of song, prayer and stories that honour veterans and express hopes for world peace.

This year's concert, Sing Out a Song Of Peace is on Sunday, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. Admission is free and since this concert often has a full house, please arrive a half an hour in advance. Special seats are reserved for veterans and their spouses.

Come for some quiet reflection, heart-warming stories and excellent music that will help remind everyone about the important goal of promoting harmony in the world. In this, the Year of the Veteran, organizers invite everyone in the community to gather together to thank those who have contributed to our freedom.
