Swing Tips

By Mike Harris

While the weather is warmer, the importance of staying warm on the golf course cannot be overstated. The tendency, especially early in the season, is to strip down to shirtsleeves as soon as the temperature gets above 15 degrees. What tends to happen, is that your adrenaline and excitement for being back on the golf course tends to elevate the temperature of the body, and for a while your golf swing will stay loose and supple.

If the temperature remains in the teens throughout the round, and this is one of the first rounds of golf of the season, your muscles will begin to fatigue and stiffen very quickly as you get into the back nine, especially.

Use your common sense, and think of the round of golf as a marathon, rather than a sprint. What this means is, save the wear and tear on your muscles early in the round by keeping them warm and relaxed, and you will have a better chance of keeping that great round going for the full 18 holes.

Dress in several thin layers, including a t-shirt, golf shirt/or long sleeve mock neck, a light wool vest or sweater, and some type of jacket to break the wind. A combination of these layers will do the trick!

Golf Thought of the Week: The less skilled the player, the more likely he is to share his thoughts on the golf swing.
