

Join us downtown for this Saturday's Village Festival and the summer's Farmer's Market!

Sample the diverse and delicious cuisine offered by our many food vendors on Main Street.

Visit Bob and crew at McMaster Meats for their fresh sandwiches and to contribute to the charity barbeque Bob has sponsored – Friday's proceeds from hot-dogs and hamburgers will be donated to Park School, and Saturday's shish kabobs will go towards breast cancer research.

Canterbury Gourmet (Catering?) will have outdoor cooking demonstrations. Stop by to learn how to create appetizers as delicious as theirs. If you can't get the hang of it, try Canterbury for their catering services!

A trip to the Shepherd's Crook will provide a relaxing escape accompanied with pub fare and evening entertainment. Perhaps a beer is in order after a long week!

The Cellar Restaurant will share chef Brady Davies with the rest of us for a cooking demonstration on Saturday. The mouth-watering display may make you want to take a trip downstairs to sample some steak, seafood or their excellent wine selection.

There is no coffee like Silvercreek Espresso Bar's – refuel with one of their certified fair-trade organic brews and see for yourself! Outdoor coffee service will be paired with Silvercreek's satiating grilled panini. Treat yourself!

The reliable Main Street Variety Store will be offering up the best of their summer fare including slushies and ice cream – the perfect kind of cold treat to kick off a summer festival!

77 Market Street can't be left off of the menu; their licensed patio and Bistro menu make it a worthwhile trip off of the main street.

Golden Fish and Chips will be serving what they serve best – the fish and chips that we have all come to know and love.

Renowned for their Szechwan and Cantonese food, House of Buddha will live up to their delectable reputation, as they have been doing for many years.

Nothing says summer like a barbeque, and the McGibbon (Hotel? Bar? Restaurant?) will be right in season with their burgers, dogs, chips and kabobs. Feel free to relax in their licensed beer garden also.

Foodstuffs will be providing cooking demonstrations on Friday with specialty and health foods for those of us looking for exciting and nutritional meal ideas.

Cordon Bleu-trained chef owners of Simply Bleu invite you to experience their French Bistro-style cuisine. Adding their own elegance to the street, Simply Bleu is the perfect place for a savoury feast.

For a taste that will leave you describing it as "just how my grandmother used to make it," try Heather's Bakery's homemade sandwiches, soups and sweets. Indulge!

Choose from Cantonese, Szechwan and Canadian food at Yong's Family Restaurant. No guilt required – Yong's menu is MSG free!

Finally, Mill Street's Le Café Soleil will be providing health and wellness information on Friday from 12p.m. - 4p.m. Learn how to make a healthy lifestyle taste good.

Evidently our Main Street has something for every taste. Don't miss the chance to support our local vendors – and eat some darn good food while you're at it!

Lots to see and do at the 12th Annual Village Festival!

Village Festival FRI Jun 16 and SAT Jun 17th, 2006 – a chance to meander down Main Street in downtown Georgetown with your family. We have events planned in historic downtown Georgetown, where the streets will be barricaded against automobiles, and you can walk around and enjoy the multitude of entertainment provided to you by the businesses in the downtown area. There will be jugglers, a fire breathing fellow, body poppers, flying falcons, dancers, a climbing wall, story telling, bouncy castle and slide, free face painting, kids coloring contests and craft activities, make up and makeovers, art exhibits, story telling, bands playing, contests, coffee and food.

So please, come visit the downtown

Village Festival this weekend in historic old Georgetown. On Friday morning everything gets underway at 10 o'clock, so if you are at home with the little ones on Friday or by yourself and feel like some company, come on out before the Saturday crowds and sample what we have to offer at the downtown Georgetown Village Festival. On Saturday be prepared to park down the road and walk along Main Street to see the spectacular shows, vendors and events that we have to offer. At the downtown Village Festival we have things to tempt your taste buds, tantalize your adventurous spirit and tickle your funny bone... come meet the downtown merchants at the annual Village Festival this weekend FRI Jun 16th and SAT Jun 17th!
