

Coupon campaign saved money and energy

Ontarians demonstrated their enthusiasm for conservation by redeeming over 1.6 million coupons for energy-saving products last year. In doing so, they purchased an estimated 2.8 million compact fluorescent light bulbs, according to the Ontario Power Authority.

The coupons were part of a province-wide spring and fall campaign— Every Kilowatt Counts—which twice sent coupon booklets and information on electricity savings to over 4.6 million Ontario households in 2006.

Ontarians redeemed these coupons for savings on products such as compact fluorescent light bulbs, programmable thermostats, ceiling fans and timers. Over 3,000 retail outlets participated in the program in 400 communities in every corner of the province.

In total, the 2006 program will result in lifetime electricity savings of more than 2 million MWh (megawatt-hours) over the 8-year lifetime of the products, which is enough electricity to power about 24,000 Ontario households (a city the size of North Bay) over the same time period.

The OPA plans to begin the 2007 Every Kilowatt Counts program in April.
