TERRA GREENHOUSES Trends

The Early Bird Gets The Worm

As the winter temperatures continue to creep into our early spring days, gardeners anxiously wait to start digging. When it's still too early to dig outside, starting seeds indoors is a rewarding and inexpensive activity for gardeners of all ages. All you need to get started is a container, growing mix potting soil, and a bright window or grow light. Homegrown vegetables and herbs always taste better. Even if you don't have room outside for an extensive garden, a decorative pot can grow your own cherry tomatoes, peppers, lettuce, and culinary herbs. Flowers seeds grow well in pots on the smallest balcony or porch.

Try planting seeds with your kids on a rainy spring day. Watch their eyes light up when their peas, beans, corn, or even sunflowers sprout out of the soil in days. A great birthday party activity, plant seeds with kids choosing larger size seeds so they are easier to handle.

Get back to the basics and seed your way to the garden of your dreams.
