Fire department sees increase in number of carbon monoxide detector false alarm calls

In light of the increasing number of false alarm carbon monoxide detector calls Halton Hills firefighters have responded to recently, the fire department is offering several tips to homeowners to ensure the detectors are working properly.

1. Vacuum and dust carbon monoxide detectors at least once a month as they do gather dust.

2. Install them in the locations recommended by the manufacturer.

3. If battery operated, change them when you change your clocks.

4. Read and understand all the manufacturers instructions/specifications.

5. Have gas-fired appliances checked/inspected annually to ensure there are no problems with the appliances. Preventative maintenance goes a long way.

6. During winter months make sure blowing and drifting snow doesn't plug chimneys.

7. Inspect all chimneys in the fall to ensure birds, raccoons or squirrels haven't built any nests.

8. Do not run any vehicles or equipment in the garage. Exhaust fumes can easily seep through doors and into the house.

9. Consider replacing the device when it reaches seven to ten years old.

"Keeping your devices clean and dust-free, following all the manufacturers' specifications will often eliminate false alarms," said Halton Hills Fire Protection and Prevention Services Chief of Prevention and Public Education Harry Olivieri. "Unfortunately, those false alarms will provide a false sense of security."

He stressed people must pay attention to the inherent dangers of carbon monoxide and consequences that could result from exposure to carbon monoxide.

"If you have been exposed to carbon monoxide you will most likely experience flu-like symptoms such as headaches, nausea, dizziness, confusion and even loss of consciousness," said Olivieri.
