Check your home for signs of any winter damage

As the last of the snow melts, most people's thoughts are on the warmer months ahead.

Spring is the time to prepare your garden for the growing season, and it's also an excellent time to check your home for winter damage. "Proactive maintenance is always better than reactive maintenance," says Colin Smyth, business leader for AmeriSpec of Canada.

"Just because its spring, doesn't mean you can't get things ready for the following winter."

AmeriSpec of Canada recommends the following activities to assess your home for winter damage, start repairs and prepare for next winter:

- Check foundation walls, floors, concrete and masonry for cracking, heaving or deterioration.
- Check the roof for any missing, loose or damaged shingles.
- Check all decks and stair railings. They should be secure and have vertical guardrails with no more than 4.5-inch spaces.
- Check your ceilings and attic for evidence of water penetration.
- Check lawn sprinkler system for leaky valves and exposed lines.
- Check flashings around all surface projections and sidewalls.
- Prune your trees and shrubs.
- Check carbon monoxide detectors

• Inside your home, check caulking around showers, bathtubs, sinks, and toilet base.

By following these simple recommendations, your property will be ready for spring planting and summer barbecues and free of maintenance problems for another year. More information about home maintenance is available online at www.amerispec.ca or toll-free 1-800-263-5928 x 433.
