

Artist donates prints for UCHS fundraisers

Local artist Shirley Deaville (right) recently donated a number of numbered prints to Upper Credit Humane Society, to be used as fundraisers when bought through the UCHS office, at Georgetown Pet Valu or website, www.uppercredit.com. On hand to accept the print were (from left) Pet Valu owner Sharon Lewis and her friend Chili, UCHS chair Debby Delorme and UCHS treasurer Gerda Potzel. There are two prints available, one of a dog and another of kittens, and are on sale, framed for $195 (taxes included). Photo by Ted Brown

Church to hold Caring for Aging Parents seminar

Georgetown Alliance Church hosts a Caring for Your Aging Parents seminar on Sunday, April 20, 6:30 p.m. at the 290 Main St., S. church.

Led by a healthcare professional, this interactive forum will touch on many of the issues that adult children and their aging parent(s) will face as the parent(s) experience circumstances that lead to reduced personal independence.

Some of the topics that will be addressed are:

- How can the family begin to discuss important health care issues?

- What support is available to help my parent(s) stay in their home even if they find housecleaning, cooking, and other duties difficult?

- What is a Power of Attorney for Personal Care and is it important?

- How do I evaluate long-term care options?

- What can we expect should mom or dad suffer a stroke or heart attack?

Related resource materials will also be available.

To register for this free seminar, call Doug Kelley, 905-873-0249 or e-mail: admin@togetheratgac.com.
