Redux South Pacific for some cast members

LOIS FRASER

Georgetown Globe Productions

South Pacific opens at the John Elliott Theatre on May 1 and runs until May 10 (seven shows). It is suitable for all ages and Globe has added a matinee on May 4 for those who prefer a day-time show.

This famous Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is set in the Second World War and follows the lives of the American marines and nurses who are stationed in the South Pacific.

The show is full of funny numbers like There is Nothing Like a Dame, I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair and Honey Bun. The crazy antics of the sailors are contrasted by the romantic numbers Some Enchanted Evening and Younger Than Springtime. The audience is sure to shed tears of laughter but also be very touched by the heroism in the story.

The cast is an experienced group. Mark Llewellyn (recently Coalhouse Porter in Ragtime) is tackling the role of romantic plantation owner Emile Dubec for the second time.

Mark jokes that the first time (15 years ago), they had to fake grey temples but he can do it on his own now.

Rob Woodcock is playing Luther Billis, the comic role, and it is his second time in the role. You suspect that if people are playing the same role more than once it has to be because it is fun.

Tickets for South Pacific are $22 (16 and under are $16). Call the JET Box Office at 905-877-3700.
