More than 1,000 tulips blooming in downtown Georgetown

More than 1,000 tulips that were planted last fall in the gardens and medians created during the reconstruction of Downtown Georgetown last summer, are now blooming.

Georgetown BIA manager Kay Matthews invites residents to dust off their bicycles and come downtown— large bicycle racks were installed on the north and south end of downtown and smaller bike rings on the east and west sides.

Three new benches have been installed (thanks to generous sponsors) and more are on the way, says Matthews.

For the summer, hanging baskets are on order and a maintenance program is in place to continue the work of making Downtown Georgetown a beautiful place to cycle, sit and shop.

On Saturday, June 21st, the Georgetown Farmers' Market opens with the Festival on Main (June 20-21). On that day there will be fresh produce, plants, and lots of music and entertainment.

The Farmers Market continues every Saturday morning until Thanksgiving weekend.

Downtown Georgetown has more than 125 shops, restaurants and services.
