

Town blessed with many volunteers

In Halton Hills we are blessed by the many contributions of our volunteers.

We have seen the important results of volunteer work in Halton Hills. Your work helps to create a stable and cohesive society by bringing people together for the common good.

On a personal level, volunteering creates bonds of trust, encourages co-operation, promotes good health and emotional well-being, and most importantly, it increases social harmony. Your dedication makes a difference to the lives of our residents and the quality of life we have come to enjoy and appreciate.

Halton Hills is a unique community of several neighborhoods, each having a network of support and an identity of its own. This is our strength, our foundation, and the very fabric that makes Halton Hills a wonderful place to live, work and raise a family. From the sports fields, to the hockey rinks, to the service clubs, hospitals, schools, churches and support groups, there will be many volunteers going the extra mile to make our community special. Many organizations and agencies would simply not exist without these volunteers.

It is not surprising that research has proven that one of the best things we can do to improve people's lives is to provide relevant opportunities to volunteer. One recent study found that 6 per cent of people who volunteer as adults reported one or both of their parents had set an example by volunteering when they were young. Volunteering is a spirit that can be inherited and is a powerful gift that can be passed on to future generations. That's a legacy of which we can be proud.

I urge you to continue to build upon the wealth of our community through the good work of volunteering.

What kind of upbringing did these hoodlums get? Their families must be very proud of them—NOT!
