Squadron review

On Sunday, June 8, 756 Wild Goose Squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets will conduct their 40th annual review at the Mold-Masters SportsPlex.

Many of the past commanding officers will be in attendance and all past cadets and staff members are welcome. The reviewing officer for the inspection will be Major David Calvin Forster, CD. Spectators should be seated by 12:30 p.m.

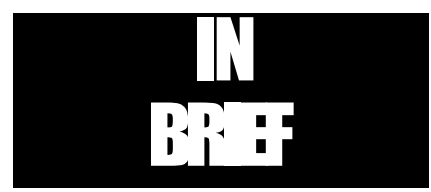

This year the squadron officially changes its name from Georgetown Legion Squadron to Wild Goose Squadron. With this change, the unit will receive a new banner in a special ceremony during the review. All past cadets will also be invited to join the current members for a commemorative March Past. Displays by the cadets will be available for viewing afterwards.

A reunion is also planned for all past cadets of the squadron at Branch 120 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Georgetown on Friday, June 6 from 7 p.m. until 1 a.m. Contact Michelle Mitchell at 905-873-3978 if you are attending the reunion.

Growth meeting

Elected officials from all levels of government will gather this Friday in Halton to discuss how to pay for the implementation of the Province's Places to Grow plan.

The Canadian Urban Institute (CUI), in partnership with the Region and in conjunction with the

GTA and Hamilton mayors and chairs, will host a one-day conference Friday called 'Building Complete Communities: A Summit to Explore New Ways to Afford Sustainable Growth.'

"While we plan for how our communities will grow over the next 25 years, financing the infrastructure needed to accommodate growth presents a significant challenge," said Regional Chair Gary Carr.

For more information on registration for the event contact Linda Varekamp at 416 365-0816, ext. 221.

Relay for Life

The Canadian Cancer Society's annual Relay for Life event will be held at Gellert Community Park in Georgetown from 7 p.m. (Friday, June 6) to 7 a.m. (Saturday, June 7).

Sue Scarfone, fundraising co-ordinator with the Brampton/Caledon/Georgetown/Dufferin County Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society says the goal for this year's event in town is $100,000.

Last year's Relay for Life in Georgetown, which was the second one held here, raised $80,000 with 43 teams taking part. So far this year 50 teams have already signed on.

Pride Picnic

There will be a carnival atmosphere at this year's Halton Pride Picnic slated for Saturday, June 7 at the Central Park bandshell in Burlington from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

The ninth annual picnic celebrates the lives and contributions of Halton's gay, lesbian, bisexual, trans, intersex and two-spirit communities, their children, friends, families, faith communities and allies.

In addition to the booths featuring HOPE's partner and advisory members, the event will include music, craft and community displays and a children's play and craft area. There'll also be a marketplace section and a barbecue hosted by Halton Police.

Organizers hope that moving the picnic from Bronte Creek Provincial Park to the Central Park bandshell will improve attendance, particularly by youths. There's no admission fee at the new location (2331 New St.) and it is on a bus route.

To coincide with the picnic, HOPE will ask Halton Region and its municipalities (Burlington, Halton Hills, Oakville and Milton) to fly the rainbow pride flag from June 2-7.

The picnic will take place rain or shine and there is still space for vendor booths, which cost $20 per day. For information, call 905-632-4551 or visit www.haltonpride.org.
