This week's challenge!

explore it

Go somewhere you've never been! Do something you've never done! Check out the wildlife at a wetland, hike a new trail or go to a corner of town you've never ventured. It could even be a part of the playground you've yet to conquer, like the top of the monkey bars. The objective is to try something new and share the experience by posting your stories and photos online!

Halton Place invites public to Saturday barbecue

"We would object if there's any move to change the bylaw," said Pemberton.

Noise complaints the neighbours of Halton Place may have are to be dealt with through the Town's noise bylaw by calling the Town but Pemberton said he's uncertain at this point what the recourse will be for neighbours on weekends.

Halton Place Competition manager Meg Krueger said they "were definitely relieved" the hearing officer upheld the NEC decision.

"But it's too bad we have to go through this every year," said Krueger adding the horse shows are "permitted uses of an agricultural property."

She said the cost for the hearing is "significant" and "not pocket change."

With the hearing decision just released Friday, and the permit and site plan approval from the Town only coming Monday, Krueger said, "it makes everything very last minute, which is nerve-wracking."

While Krueger said there were "a lot of conditions" for an agricultural event, they didn't mind undertaking the necessary studies required, for example for traffic, noise, and nutrient management.

"Anything we can do to improve operating our farm is great," said Krueger.

Other conditions Halton Place has to meet is that events only occur between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. and that amplification can only be used between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Krueger said during the shows Halton Place would eliminate one public address system to see if that will help to alleviate some of the noise concerns of the neighbours.

"We really want to work with the neighbours so we can co-exist harmoniously," said Krueger.

She said Halton Place is hosting a community appreciation event Saturday, July 12 at 4 p.m. Everyone, including Halton Place neighbours, is invited to attend the event that includes a barbecue, tour and opportunity for area residents to provide feedback on the first event.
