

Lose that electronic waste for free as part of E-Waste Amnesty Week

Local residents can get rid of their electronic waste for free starting this Monday as the Region holds its annual E-Waste Amnesty Week.

From Monday to Friday next week, citizens can take their old electronics to the Halton Waste Management Site between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Acceptable e-waste includes items such as computers, computer monitors, computer accessories like keyboards, scanners, speakers and printers, televisions, VCRs, DVD players, remote controls, stereos, speakers, answering machines and MP3 players and associated cords.

"Discarded electronic waste is accumulating at an alarming rate worldwide," said Regional Chair Gary Carr. "E-Waste Amnesty Week is an opportunity for residents to get involved to help divert unwanted electronics away from our landfill site."

Last year during E-Waste Amnesty Week, residents successfully diverted 60 tonnes of e-waste to be recycled in an environmentally-safe manner. The recycling of e-waste includes dismantling items to recover useful materials for use in the manufacturing of new products.

E-Waste Amnesty Week is one of the initiatives identified in the Region's 2006-2010 Solid Waste Management Strategy that will assist in reaching the goal of diverting 60 per cent of residential waste away from landfill.

The Region's E-Waste Amnesty Week coincides with the national Waste Reduction Week.

E-waste (excluding computer monitors and televisions) is accepted for recycling all year at the Halton

Waste Management Site for a small fee - $5 per load for up to 50 kg and $10 per load for 51 to 150 kg.

Electronics in good working order can often be taken to local reuse centres. Residents are encouraged to call ahead to ensure the item will be accepted. For a listing of local reuse centres visit www.halton.ca/waste.

E-waste collected from industrial, commercial or institutional settings won't be accepted for free during E-Waste Amnesty Week.

Waste Reduction Week

October 19 to 25, 2008

Did you know?

- If everyone worldwide consumed as much as we do in Canada, four new planets would be needed to support us all.
- In a lifetime, the average North American will throw away 600 times his or her adult weight in garbage. A 68 kg (150 lbs) adult will leave a legacy of 40,825 kg (90,003 lbs) of trash.

Here are some easy ways you can reduce the amount of waste your family generates each week:

- Avoid pre-packaged and ready-made foods. Not only are they usually over-packaged, they are also not as healthy as foods you prepare from fresh ingredients.
- Buy in bulk. Not only will this cut down on the amount of packaging you throw away, but it saves you money too.
- Use a reusable bag when shopping.
- Pack a "litterless lunch" for school and work. Use reusable containers to pack sandwiches, soups or salads, etc. Bring your own reusable cutlery and a reusable thermos for your drink.
- Use rechargeable batteries whenever possible.
- Instead of using disposable cups, ask colleagues to "lug a mug" in your office.
- Make double-sided photocopies and use scrap paper for messages.

The annual Waste Reduction Week takes place October 19 to October 25, 2008. This national event encourages everyone to make a difference in the amount of waste materials being processed. For more information, visit www.wrwcanada.com
