

Tories choose Ted Arnott to contest election in 2007

Waterloo-Wellington MPP Ted Arnott was enthusiastically and unanimously endorsed Monday to carry the Progressive Conservative (P.C.) banner in the riding of Wellington-Halton Hills in the next provincial election in 2007.

There were no other candidates named at the P.C. nominating convention at Rockmosa Community Centre in Rockwood on Monday evening.

A 16-year veteran of the Ontario Legislature, Arnott was first elected in 1990 in Waterloo-Wellington and subsequently re-elected in 1995, 1999 and again in 2003. With the redrawing of electoral boundaries, the Waterloo-Wellington riding has been broken up and parts of Wellington lumped in with Halton Hills to form a new riding.

MPP Ted Chudleigh, who represents Halton Hills now will contest the P.C. nomination in Halton riding in the next election.

Arnott, a native of Arthur, attended high school there, obtained a B.A. degree in Political Science and a Diploma in Business Administration at Wilfred Laurier University in Waterloo. He was listed in the university's 2004 annual report as a graduate who is "making a difference around the world."

Arnott married Lisa McCabe in December of 1990 and the couple has three sons. They live in the Ferinfrastructure and health care and the job situation in the smaller communities of Ontario. Tory, he said, chose to stay in Canada when he could have gone to bigger things in the U.S., is smart and decent with a social conscience.

Arnott acknowledged he has already done much spade work in Halton Hills visiting fairs in Georgetown and Acton, buying a briefcase at the olde Hide House, etc., etc. to acquaint voters with him.

Other speakers included Ontario PC executive members and MP Mike Chong's riding assistant Jim Smith. Letters of support were also read from former MPP Jack Johnson.
