

Acton's 'Village by the Arboretum' to be 'more affordable' - developer

Acton East Housing is concerned that seniors in Acton and area are misreading their submission to the Town regarding the proposal to construct a development in Acton East using Guelph's Village by the Arboretum as an analogy.

President Fred Dawkins says they used the Village by the Arboretum (VBA) analogy to indicate that we want to do a very comprehensive project focused on a wide range of needs for seniors in terms of both lifestyle and the nature and cost of accommodations. We always premise our use of the VBA analogy with the description 'more affordable.'

Dawkins says "the final version of our development, if the Town decides to deal with this issue, will be determined after widespread consultations, especially with local seniors."

The Acton developer was concerned that a letter in last week's New Tanner reflected a view that the Acton development would be an exact replica of Guelph's Village by the Arboretum, which is not the case.
