Daffodil sales help fund valuable cancer research

To the editor,

Thank you to everyone who supported the annual Canadian Cancer Society daffodil sale. The beautiful yellow daffodils were a welcome sight after such a long and snowy winter! We were fortunate to have good weather for selling daffodils and all of our flowers were sold out by early Saturday afternoon. The Acton community showed their support for the Canadian Cancer Society and a total of $7,000 was raised through the sale!

The money that is raised through the daffodil sale and our April door-to-door canvassing helps to fund valuable research efforts that make a difference for people living with cancer and for those of us that may encounter the disease in the future. The Canadian Cancer Society is the largest charitable funder of cancer research in Canada. This research helps Canadians to understand, prevent and reduce their risk of cancer by transforming research knowledge into information, programs and services.

The Canadian Cancer Society helps people take control of their health with reliable information. The Cancer Information Service is a toll free number (1-888-939-3333) that people can call to get information about all types of cancer, treatment options and services that are available in each community. Information is a powerful tool and many people who have been newly diagnosed rely on Canadian Cancer Society publications to help them along their journey through treatment. Donations to the Canadian Cancer Society also help fund services for people who are living with cancer and their families. Transportation is available locally for patients that need help with getting to their cancer treatments. A program called the "Cancer Connection" is a peer support service that supports people who have been diagnosed with cancer by matching them with volunteers who have experienced a similar type of cancer.

Volunteers are an essential part of the Canadian Cancer Society and I would like to thank all of the volunteers that helped with selling daffodils because we would not have had a successful sale without your wonderful efforts! We very much appreciate the Acton Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion for allowing us to store our daffodils at their facility and we are grateful to Sobeys for giving us the opportunity to sell our daffodils at their store. The New Tanner and the Independent Free Press provided wonderful publicity and we certainly appreciate your ongoing support.

Sincerely,
Cathy Gerrow,
Daffodil Sale Coordinator,
Acton Branch,
Canadian Cancer Society.

Why being let off?

To the editor,

I feel compelled to write in response to two articles in last week's paper. In both instances, young people committed minor offences. (Angela's column reported on two youngsters who vandalized a street sign and the police beat reported on three youth who stole the Seniors

Buy Canadian

To the editor,

In my opinion, Canadian manufacturers should put a label on their goods saying "Thank you for buying Canadian and not supporting a communist country."

Thank you for your time,

Yours truly,
Norman C. Foote

Centre's banner from Sobeys.)

Why are we letting these youngsters off completely? How will they learn a lesson? The lesson they will learn is they can vandalize and steal with no consequences!

Maybe helping seniors in some way or cleaning up an area of Acton would be a suitable punishment – What do other readers think?
