Halton Music Showcase

The band from Acton High School and the choir from Robert Little School were among the Halton students who took the stage last night (Wednesday) at Hamilton Place for the 24th annual Halton Music Showcase.

Approximately 1,200 students from Grades four to 12 gave performances including stage bands, concert bands, jazz groups and choirs. A highlight of the evening will be the finale featuring a performance by a 600-member student choir.

“Showcase is a celebration of excellence in music programs in the Halton District School Board,” says Mary Baratto, Co-ordinator of the Arts for the Halton District School Board. “It provides an opportunity for our students to perform in a venue with a professional stage, lighting, and acoustics – for many students this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.”

“This event showcases their musical talent and the excellent music programs in our schools.”
