Long weekend focus on safety - OPP

This Civic Holiday Long Weekend the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) will be working to help ensure that motorists and outdoor enthusiasts have a safe holiday. Officers will continue to focus on "the big three" causes of injuries on the roads waterways and trails - aggressive driving, drinking and driving and improper use of seatbelts, restraints and floatation devices.

Aggressive driving includes the offences of speeding, following to closely and unsafe lane changes. Off-road and waterway aggressive driving is defined as speeding too fast for conditions and operating vessels and all-terrain vehicles without due care and attention for other users. These offences are the leading causes of serious crashes and fatalities on Ontario's highways, waterways and trails.

Drinking and driving offences continue to be the leading criminal cause of death in Ontario. Throughout the province, R.I.D.E. programs will be set up to target drivers who disrespect others by drinking and driving. The proper use of seatbelts and child restraints will also be a focus as the OPP continues to see preventable injuries and deaths occurring in collisions where occupants are either not wearing seatbelts or are using them improperly.

OPP Deputy Commissioner Larry Beechey, Provincial Commander for Traffic Safety reminds everyone, "During the recent Canada Day extra-Long Weekend, 16 people lost their lives on Ontario Highways, trails and waterways....Drive carefully, wear your lifejackets and seatbelts and ask others to do the same."

Use caution near waterways

The unusual amounts of rainfall we have been receiving this summer has led, at times, to elevated water levels in creeks and streams in the Halton area and occasional local flooding. In fact, some storms have dropped 40 to 70mm of rainfall in a very short time. The recent storms that have passed through the Halton region have led to Conservation Halton issuing repeated Flood Advisories.

Conservation Halton and Halton Police are asking everyone to alert children in your care of these dangers. It is important for everyone to use caution when around bodies of water and stay well back of stream banks during the run off after large amounts of rainfall, which can last for days.

Recently, an 8-year-old child was playing near Tuck Creek, north of Burlington, when one of his shoes went into the water. When the child reached for it, he was swept away by the strong current. The 14-year-old sister of the boy, and his mother jumped into the waters attempting to save the boy. Burlington Police were called and responded immediately jumping into the water.

In the end the boy was pulled to safety by his sister, and the mother was rescued by the responding police officers. All parties were taken to hospital, and it appears no one sustained any injury. A lucky day, things could have turned out much worse for all three family members and the police officers.

More heavy rainfall fell yesterday (Wednesday) in the Halton Region.

Conservation Halton monitors stream and weather conditions and issues updates. You can access the latest information by visiting www.conservationhalton.ca.
