Celtic Society forms

A visit to the Fallbrook Farm followed the inaugural meeting of the North Halton Celtic Historical Society yesterday (Wednesday) at the Ballinafad United Church.

The new Society evolved from the Friends of Fallbrook Farm, a group working towards getting a historical designation for the 19th century McClure cabin at the Fallbrook site, located in the Silver Creek Conservation Area on 27 Side Road. Town Council is investigating designating a stone arch bridge and the McClure Mill site as historically significant under the Ontario Heritage Act.

The Celtic Historical Society plans to present council with a business plan to help pay for needed restorations if the heritage designation is granted. The lack of a business plan has delayed Council's decision in the past.

The Society wants to save and resurrect the Fallbrook site – including a home, icehouse, bridge, stone walls and Providence cemetery – all classic examples of traditional Scottish architecture and craftsmanship.
