"BUTTER FOR PASTRY" The majority of women who pride themselves in their cooking take particular pride in their pastry, for it is generally felt that the ability to make delicious, tender pastry is a real accomplishment in mastering the culinary art. It is not a difficult matter to make good pastry, provided the proper ingredients are used and care is taken in combining them. Shortening is an important factor because it has much to do with the texture of the pastry as well as the flavor. A combination of equal parts of butter and a soft shortening, such as lard, is ideal for the purpose, since the butter provides both flavor and color while the other shortening assures tenderness.

PASTRY NO. 1 1 1/2 cups pastry flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/4 cup butter 1/4 cup lard cold water (about 3/4 cup) Sift flour and salt, cut in shortening with two knives or pastry blender. Moisten with cold water, adding just enough water to combine ingredients. Roll into shape. Chill thoroughly before rolling. Bake in a hot oven.

PASTRY NO. 2 1 1/2 cups pastry flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/4 cup butter 1/4 cup lard cold water (about 3/4 cup) Sift flour and salt, cut in lard with knives or pastry blender. Moisten with cold water. Press on slightly floured board. Roll in rectangular sheet 1/4 inch thick. Dot butter on half of sheet, fold, press down edges, roll lightly. Fold and roll again. Chill thoroughly. Bake in hot oven. Note—For those not expert in pastry making, the first of the above methods may be more satisfactory, although the second method gives a more flaky pastry.

GEMS OF THOUGHT No specks of falsehood is more frequent than flattery; to which the coward is betrayed by fear, the dependent by interest, and the friend by tenderness.

RAILWAY'S PLACE IN NATION'S AFFAIRS

The place which Canada's railways occupy in the Dominion's affairs is strikingly shown in some statistics recently released. Last year 66,626,000 tons of freight were transported by Canadian railways and 17,952,000 passengers travelled on their trains. The total payrolls of Canada's railways for the year amounted to $141,078,000 paid to an average of 119,000 employees. The railways are one of the largest consumers of Canada's coal output. Some figures in this respect covering Canadian-National lines show that out of every dollar of the $151,930,078.56 spent last year in operating the railway, approximately 10 cents went for fuel. The fuel bill for locomotives amounted to $14,709,992.33 for the year; the water bill amounted to $68,700.04. Approximately 80 cents out of every dollar of expenses went for labor. Information as to commodities handled over Canadian National lines throughout the year gives a sidelight on the extent to which Canada's mining industry has grown. Products of the mines constituted the largest portion of the total revenue tonnage, 12,992,548, or 32.7 per cent. Agricultural products account for 23.1 per cent. Forest products 12.2 per cent, animal products 2.7 per cent, miscellaneous 29.8 per cent.

QUEBEC PAGE IS WRITTEN IN RAILWAY POLICE REPORT

Many interesting adventures lie behind the bald statement of fact which constitutes the reports of the railway police. An unusual incident came to light in the report made by a Canadian National Railway constable at North Bay, following a complaint that an unknown man had been chopping down the various crossing snow-plow signs in a remote section of the North Country. The signs, which were in the form of a cross, were erected at the crossings as a warning to the crew to raise the flanger of the plow before passing over the public track protections. Between the lines of the report could be read the story of a lonely man, who lived in a log cabin, by the railway right-of-way, who had suddenly become deranged. His mania took the form of destroying all signs which were patterned after a cross. When the constable approached him he became wildly excited and threatened the officer with an axe. The settler declared that he would destroy all signs bearing such a cross and stated that the trains had no right to disturb him by operating past his property. It was a ticklish situation but by exercising diplomacy he was somewhat pacified and the constable left to communicate with a provincial police constable. Subsequently the two rode to the settler's cabin on a section gas-car, where the insane man was arrested after a struggle. He was later examined by a doctor and committed to the asylum as hopelessly insane. Yet the entire story was told in the report to Superintendent Rowland Flynn, of the Canadian National Investigation Department, in less than three typewritten lines.

HINTS TO THE COOK

When you boil or roast meat, the principle to bear in mind is that a crust should be formed on the outside as quickly as possible, in order to retain the juices. The temperature must then be lowered in order that the inside may cook through. When boiling meat, plunge it into boiling water and boil it rapidly for three or four minutes, then add a little cold water to check the boiling, and draw the pan aside. After the first boiling, the meat should only simmer. When roasting meat, put it into a very hot oven, or close to a clear red fire, and leave until the whole outside is crusted over. Then move the joint further away from the heat to finish cooking at about half of the original temperature. Allow fifteen minutes per pound when roasting, and twenty minutes per pound when boiling. The shape of the joint should not make any difference in the calculation—only the weight. A stew will be more savory if the meat is first browned quickly on both sides by frying in hot fat for two or three minutes. After frying, lay the meat in a stewpan, sprinkle with seasoned flour and pour in sufficient stock just to cover. If any vegetables are added to the stew, put in less stock, as the vegetables increase the liquid. Bring a stew up to boiling point, then immediately put it in a far corner of the oven and keep it gently simmering for two hours. Do not use a larger stewpan than is necessary.

TAKING NO CHANCES

A Scotchman, an Englishman, and an Irishman were on a raft in the middle of the ocean. There was no hope of rescue, so the Irishman, a very plump man, got on his knees to pray. The Englishman, out of respect for the Irishman, took off his hat. The Scotchman thought that the Englishman was going to pass the hat and dived overboard.

BRAY CHICKS repeating 1934's Successes If "somebody" forgot to put the lid on your brooder stove on the evening of a cold day in January, and next morning you found ice in the water fountain—what would you expect to happen to your flock of week-old chicks? John Dew, King, Ont., had that experience with his early-hatched Bray White Leghorns this year, and he only lost four—and only one he has died since! He has nearly all his broilers sold, and out of 303 chicks has raised 170 fine pullets—as well as a flock as you could want to see. They weigh just about the even 2 1/2 lbs. per bird at 11 1/2 weeks old.
