Boys of fifteen frequently form habits that will dominate them las long as they live. If you are letting yourself worry over all the little vexutions which beset you, all the disagreeable possibil-Itles on ahead, then you are forming habit that will mean failure as long as you live.

FLIGHT MAKES DEFEAT

You are beaten by anything from which you retreat. It makes no difference whether it is a foe, a difficulty, or even an opportunity. Flight acknowledges defeat. Flight is defeat.

Do not turn your back on difficulties. on perplexities. Do not run away from opposition or ridicule. No matter how strong you are, when you turn your back you are beaten.

COSTLY PLEASURE

In her description of a well-known writer, his daughter says, "Nothing is a pleasure to him that involves pain to anything." That cuts out certain amusements that some of you enjoy, hunting and fishing, for instance. There are also the practical jokes that amuse your little clique, while the victims of your sense of humour are hurt and humiliated. This cort of fun would not mean anything to the author referred to, since nothing gives him pleasure that gives another pain. Would not that be a rather good rule Of the Estate of ELLA WALKER, late of for all to adopt, ruling out the amusements which mean suffering to somebody or something? After all, is any pleasure valuable enough to be paid for
