They didn't want many—so at the O.M.A. Executive meeting at Milton, after a long discussion they were told that they would have to get along without any. "Steamboat Round the Bend" Laughter and tears, comedy and near tragedy followed each other in quick succession and bring drama and suspense to Will Rogers' rendering of "Steamboat Round the Bend," which came on Friday (yesterday) to the Gregory Theatre. Two unusual entertainment elements combined to make the great and moving story of "Steamboat Round the Bend." One is the laugh-filled rivalry of Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb, America's two greatest humorists, as the equity captains of competing boats; the other is the wistful and tender romance of Anne Shirley and John McQuire.

FUR FARMING EXPANDS

Fur farming in Canada continues to expand, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The total value of the fur-bearing animals on the farms at the end of 1934 was $2,477,667, an increase over the preceding year of nearly a million dollars, and the revenue received by the fur farms from the sale of live animals and pelts was $4,066,905 in 1934. The silver fox represents 92 per cent of the total value of all kinds of fur-bearing animals in captivity; in 1934 the number of fox farms in operation in Canada was 6,083, and other fur farms 936. Chief among the latter are mink farms, numbering 634, and raccoon farms, numbering 182. Fur farming is playing an increasingly important part in the fur trade of Canada, and the value of pelts of ranch-bred animals represents about 31 per cent of the total annual value of the raw fur production of the Dominion. While Canada has always been an important source of furs, the fur trade having been a dominating influence in the discovery and development of the country, the raising of wild animals in captivity for their furs is of comparatively recent origin. The practice of trapping in the early days of keeping furs caught in the warm weather alive until the fur was prime gave birth to the modern industry of fur farming. The earliest authentic record of the successful breeding of the fox in captivity was in Prince Edward Island in 1878. After 1890 came a period of rising prices for furs and the fur-farming industry grew rapidly spreading to the other provinces, and interest also developed in the raising of other kinds of animals for their furs. Ontario now leads the province with fur farms, property to the value of $2,821,614, while Quebec comes second with $2,663,816 and Prince Edward Island holds third place with fur farms valued at $2,047,766. Reconciling injury with justice, and unkindness with kindness.—Confucius.

Argument No. 3

Quality is that factor very seldom considered by many buyers when comparing prices. Yet Quality is the basis from which price is computed. Quality is the test of cheapness. The point we wish to emphasize is this: That we absolutely can supply flowers and floral work of First Quality if desired, and also cheaper grades when wanted. We cannot sell "first quality" blooms at "second" prices, and we do not sell seconds at "first" prices. Our flowers and designs are guaranteed as to Quality and Freshness. We are proud of our reputation for Quality Work, "acquired through seventeen years of serving Acton and vicinity with highest Quality Flowers. We respectfully solicit your floral patronage.
