THE McDOUGALL-COOPER WEDDING

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cooper, Main Street, Acton, was scene of a pretty September wedding on Tuesday, when their only daughter, Olive, became the bride of Mr. Ray Smith McDougall, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McDougall, 77 Homewood Avenue, Toronto. . Only the immediate relatives witnessed the ocremony, at which Rev. H. I. Bennie, M.A., officiated. bride, given in marriage by her father, ding cake were the features. Miss Symon was very becomingly gowned in navy and Mr. Taylor are soon to be married blue silk marquisette, with navy blue and this event had been arranged so of Briarcliffe roses and bavardia. Mrs. Earl S. Cooper, as matron of honor, was charmingly gowned in brown triple sheer. with brown hat and accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses: Mr. Edri Cooper was 'groomsman. . The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. L. G. Allen. At the reception, which followed the ceremony, Mrs. Cooper, mother of the bride, received the guests gowned in bleak crepe-back satin, wearing Ophelia roses, and Mrs. McDougall was dressed in navy blue, with white check taffets, wearing Ophelia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. McDougall left on a brief honeymoon, after the ceremony, Mrs. McDougall wearing a Mayfair green suit, with brown accessories. They will reside, in Hornepayne, and best wishes of many Acton friends of the bride follow them in their new home.

The value to the world of any natural gift or talent depends on two separate powers-that of producing excellent work and that of bringing it to the notice of those who can appreciate and use it. Very few persons unite in themselves these two capabilities. It is a rare thing to find a man or woman possessing a very marked-talent in some one department and also the tact, the judgment, the the most and the best of it. Many indeed have a limited share of each, and may to that degree be successful in their pursuits; but the highest and finest abilities in production usually so fully absorb the performer that he has neither ability nor inclination to push them into public notice. Thus it often happens that special excellence is hidden from the world, and society is deprived of its beneficient results.

OUR THOUGHTS

Do not flatter yourself that your thoughts are under due control, your desires properly regulated, or your illspositions subject as they should be to Christian principles, if your intercourse with others consists mainly of frivolous gossip, impertinent anecdotes, speculations on the character and affairs of your neighbors, the repetition of former conversations, or a discussion of current pelty scandal of society; much less, if you allow in yourself careless exaggeration on all these points, and that evening. They were presented with a beautiful walnut coffee table on behalf of the Choir by Cholemaster B. Mason, and the following address, read by Miss Rut! Gibson, accompanied, and bespoke the best wishes of the Choir. To Miss Marguerite Symon Mr. Dan Taylor

Dear Marguerite and Dari: Yrappy with you, as we are, at the approaching happy event, which should mean a deal more of lifefulfilment for you both, we want to express our appreciation of your good comradeship and faithfulness as you have been associated with us in the Choir of the church we all Choir-membership, often, is thankless task, as well as one fraught with some drudgery: However, you have both overlooked this, giving gladly of your time and presence for the benefit of the services as expressed in the worship of the church. We hope and believe that you have felt, as we have, that you were having a part in something really worth while, in contributing your part to the services from week to week. And, after all, some of the best rewards of life come from doing just that-the giving of ourselves, in little_things, as_well_as sarger ones, for making things pleasanter and better for other folk, which is surely "To the Glory of God." Particularly have we appre-clated the good fellowship growing from association with both of you. While we are happy that you will both continue in the old relationship with us, this seems a fitting time to offer as a body our heartiest congratulations and to mark our appreciation with a gift which will have at least some personal associations. We hope that you may go "singing down the years" with the "Song in Your Hearts," which is evidence, of true happiness together.

EXPORTS. UP $20,000,000

Canada's domestic exports during July had a value of $83,899,000 compared with $63,286,000 in July a Year ago, an increase of more than twenty million dollars. This gain was due largely to greatly increased shipments of wheat and $21,885,000 from $7,214,000, while aluminum exports were $3,338,000 compared with $363,000. Other products enjoying increased shipments, included butter, cattle, cheese, furs, unmanufactured leather, raw wool, paper, planks and boards, pulp wood, red cedar shingles, square timber, pigs and ingots, lead, nickel, asbestos, and electrical energy. For the first four months of the Canadian fiscal year, the export trade of the Dominion amounted to $304,323,639, gain of $69,720,910, or 29.7 per cent over the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

INFERIORITY COMPLEX HAR TO COURTESY ON HIGHWAYS

The prime requisite every must possess before he can be a courtcous and careful driver is a thorough knowledge of how to handle a car properly and an intelligent understanding of "what makes the wheels go

This was the conviction expressed by Phillip Robinson, representative of the Bureau for Street Traffic Research of Harvard University, who is in charge of the highway safety demonstration a the Canadian National Exhibition, being husband lost money speculating in stocks sponsored by the Imperial Oil Ltd., in co-operation with the Ontario Department of Highways.

"Most motorists don't take driving half seriously enough," Mr. Robinson maintained. "No man starting in to play "A sound public works program can- golf gives up learning and practicing as soon as he can tell a putter from a brassle," he said, "but of the 40,000 drivers we have tested over a considerable period, both in Canada and the United States, it is startlingly evident that many of them feel they have mastered the intricate business of driving a car the minute they are able to change gears without almost ripping them to shreds." Psychological studies, Mr. Robinson claimed, revealed that a great amount of discourtesy on the highways was due to an inferiority complex on the part of.

some drivers. "It frequently gives a mant in a snfall or old car a false sense of superiority to cut in ahead of a motorist with a large, expensive, stream-lined one," he explained, though he was unwilling to state that if every driver had a superiority complex (or h.big. new car), the highways would be travelled exclusively by a race descended from "Alphonse" and "Gaston," famed comic-supplement exponents of courtesy. "Psychologists have never quite agreed," he remarked with a smile, "where to draw the line between an inferlority complex and a superlority one. or whether there is any fundamental difference between the two."

Asked to give the necessary mental and physical equipment which research has indicated a safe and courteous driver should have, Mr. Robinson stated: "Such a driver must react normally to a color test, so that he can objey traffic light signas properly; he must have a braking reaction time of one-half recond or better, so that he can take his foot off the accelerator and apply his brakes promptly in an emergency; he must be able to estimate closely the speed of other. cars, so that he can judge properly the time and distance he must allow in passing them; and he must be proficient in co-ordinating his eyes and hands, so that his steering ability will allow him to act quickly and correctly when necessary. "If a motorist can do these things, and do them instinctively." Mr. Robinson concluded, "his mind will be relieved of a terrific burden of concentration of which he is not usually aware, and he will be free to observe on the highways! the amenities and courtesies which he performs habitaually in his business and social life."
