NOVA SCOTIA SEA MONSTER PROVES TO BE SWORDFISH

It must be in the blood. Down in Nova Scotia of late there have been several stories of sea monsters. It can't be the heat, for there ain't no such annual therobouts in summer. Possibly it's a reverberation from "ault" Scotia's Loch Ness' monster. Anyway, people around Prospect Bay, on the South Shore of Nova Scotia, reported seeing a huge sea-serpent gallivanting around the bay. The sea-serpent, however, turned out to be a big swordfish, estimated at between 350 to 400 pounds chasing small schools of fish. The spec at which the swordfish travelled amazed the onlookers, but any deep-sea angler who has tackled swordfish would not be at all surprised by the stretch of water covered by these streaks of "greased" lightning in the matter of split-seconds.

States the Fish and Game Department Sportsmen who have pitched their wits and strength against the swordfish take their hats off to him when it comes to covering ground, and as for his fighting abilities, well, they say if you want to feel what it is like to have a load of quivering dynamite on the end of your line, just hook on to a swordfish.

YIDDLING "This violin of mine seems to be out of tune." "I suppose somebody has been fiddling with it again."

BIG SHORTHORN SALE AT MOFFAT

The best Shorthorn sale held in Canada for a considerable number of years took place when 12 bulls and 34 females selected from the well-known herds of James Douglas and Sons, Caladonia, and Duncan Campbell and Son, Moffat, were sold at the farm of the latter.

A good representation of buyers from the United States helped the sale materially, and two bulls and 12 females, including the high-priced bull and the high-priced female, found new homes across the line.

The top price for a bull was $400, which was paid for the Douglas-bred bull, Browndale Flower King, a son of imported Craggston Bugler, and the high price for a female was $350 for the Douglas-bred heifer, Browndale Flower Girl 5th, also by imported Craggston Bugler. It is interesting to note that these two animals are full brother and sister.

The 12 bulls in the offering averaged $210, and the 34 females averaged $309. The general average for the 46 head was slightly over $276.

There are persons, who, in supposed compliance with the precept, "Lean not on thine own understanding," regard it as a duty to suppress all exercise of the intellectual powers in every case where the feelings are at variance with the conclusions of reason. They deem it right to "consult the heart more than the head"; that is to surrender themselves, advisedly, to the bias of any prejudice that may happen to be present; thus, deliberately and on principle, burying in the earth the talent entrusted to them, and hiding under a bushel the candle that God has lighted up in the soul. It is not intended to recommend presumption inquires into things beyond the reach of our faculties—attempts to be wise above what is written—or grandiose confidence in the certainty of our conclusions; but unless reason be employed in ascertaining what doctrines are revealed, humility cannot be exercised in acquiescing in them.—Archbishop Whately.

POLICEMAN'S TEETH NOT HIS Policemen's teeth have just been put under government control in South Africa. According to new order issued from headquarters in Pretoria, applicants for enrollment in the State Force are not merely to be examined but "the number of natural teeth, upper and lower, and their condition are to be stated." Mystery surrounds the taboo against the giving of dental advice to policemen. "Examiners must on no account instruct applicants to have un-sound teeth removed, filled or replaced by artificial teeth." One theory is that the South African Police has no desire to antagonize the dental profession, but against this it is pointed out that a recommendation to have treatment means more work for the practitioners.
