INJURIES MORE SEVERE

Mrs. Harry Hutson, who was injured when she was knocked over by a horse at the Milton Fall Fair, was removed to the Hamilton General Hospital last week, where an X-ray showed that she was suffering from a broken collar-bone, three broken ribs and a broken leg.

THE BRIGHT THINGS OF LIFE

It will help us in learning the lesson of cheerfulness if we persistently train ourselves to see the good things, the bright things, in our common life. There are some people who seem to have eyes only for the unpleasant things. They find every bit of roughness and hardness in their daily path. But on the other hand they forget their blessings. They have no memory for the beautiful things, the things fit gladness.—J. R. Miller.

A MIGHTY PURPOSE

The power of a mighty purpose to clear up a cloudy, misty life, is to lead us to see the good things, the bright things, in our common life. There are some people who seem to have eyes only for the unpleasant things. They find every bit of roughness and hardness in their daily path. But on the other hand they forget their blessings. They have no memory for the beautiful things, the things fit gladness.—J. R. Miller.

ABOUT SCHOOL LUNCHES

When mothers are making up lunches for their children to take to school, they should remember that a diet adequate for growth and health must contain enough quantity of food and enough of those foods which are used in growing and in maintaining our daily resistance against disease.

The materials that make children grow and that keep up their resistance come chiefly from fresh milk, butter, eggs, meat and fish, vegetables and fresh fruit. Cereals that are lightly milled also help. Bread, potatoes and sugar are not as useful for growth and form protection against disease, but they are the great sources we have for the energy we use. They are the fuel of the body.

What mothers pack in the children's school lunch-box will depend upon what the child is eating for breakfast and at other meals at home. An ample and balanced breakfast and evening meal will lessen the necessary size and permit a wider selection for the school lunch.

If the breakfast is hurried and small, with no fruit and perhaps highly milled cereal and tea and coffee instead of cocoa and milk, the other meals must provide the "fuel" and the "growth foods" and the "protecting foods" that were missed at breakfast.

A school lunch is an excellent opportunity to include much of the milk that is so essential in the diet of a child. The milk must be pasteurized if the child is to have complete protection against diseases such as tuberculosis, which may be borne by milk.

Fresh fruits are easily carried and should be a part of every school lunch. They provide vitamins.

Many schools are providing small stoves where children may make hot drinks, such as cocoa and chocolate. Stoves provide the opportunity to make soups, creamed potatoes or stewed tomatoes, etc.

In schools where a cafeteria is practicable it is essential that the teachers, school medical officers and a dietitian co-operate in providing menus that will guarantee optimum growth and health.

Probably 50 per cent of the school children who take lunches to school will be provided with excellent, well-planned lunches. Our concern must be for the remaining group of children, who, because of limited income at home, or because of ignorant or careless mothers, need more and better foods at lunch if they are to suffer no malnutrition.

COCONUTS FOR FLOODLIGHTS

Following the system of flood-lighting used 2,000 years ago by King Asoka, who had his temple at Buddha Gaya, Calcutta, India, stand out in the rays of light cast by coconut oil lamps, the edifice is to be again lighted. A Ceylonese woman is preparing to flood-light the temple with 84,000 coconut oil lamps. The oil and lamps are to be supplied by Ceylon itself. The lady responsible, Mrs. M. Fernando, says her task was brought about by the reading of ancient scriptures concerning King Asoka. "I am a humble devotee," she said, "and possibly cannot emulate the Royal example. But I frequently hope I may be reborn again and again completely in the footsteps of Asoka in this respect."

REAL CHOICE

Hastus and Lisa were married but a short time when she came home with a big washbasin, a washboard and a hand-some three-foot mirror.

Lisa: "What's all de truck you bring?"

Hastus: "Yo-all kin take yo' pick. Yo' kin take de tub an' washboard an' go to work, or yo' kin take de mirror an' set down and watch yo' self starve."

The LETTER BOX AND TIME MOVES ON

Dear Free Press: How time flies! This is October 11th, and a year ago to-night Victor and Mrs. Coleman and I, with 9,997 others, were in the Forum, Montreal, where what seemed like a triumphal procession took place as R. R. Bennett, Premier, was escorted up the aisle, and onto the platform, where he delivered a statesmanlike address, conveyed by loud speaker attachment. In a few days thereafter Mr. Bennett's premiership came to an end, and he reverted to his former leadership of Opposition. And now, but for the fickle nature of public opinion, he might have been at the League of Nations, instead of Mr. King.

About twenty-four hours thereafter, the same ill-fated pair accompanied me to Windsor Street depot, and there, far-welcomed, as the train quietly slid out of the train shed on route to this Great West. A cordial welcome here, has been followed by a year of rapid movement, as now reviewed. Soon, on Thanksgiving Day afternoon, I was taken through the series of miniature villages clustered around various derrick, and "plants", to one tower on the brow of a great hill, from which a magnificent view of one of Nature's great wonders, the Rockies, was visible for a range of perhaps scores of miles. Away to the east stretched a great prairie country of indefinite distance towards the sugar-making region. About midway stretched southerly the country in which the King's ranch is located. This I have never seen, although I may if I live as long as some try to assure me I will. But there is too much to engage the thought and care of those in whose care I am placed to even think of such a trip.

But it has been a year of great interest. A great many friendships have been formed, for as I think Jack Billings expressed it, "there is a great deal of human nature in the world, especially amongst folks." Having been greatly restricted in attempts at work, I have done a lot of reading, having done much daily survey of opinions re Mr. Abernethy, his promises, and purposes, and also been into a great many publications, including daily a volume which of itself contains sixty-six books. Besides, I have in addition to the sixty-four letters to The Free Press or Dundas Star—papers of old home town—I have dispatched about one hundred and eighty to various relatives and other friends.

I am glad to have this taste for pen and ink intercourse, although it is a bit too much one-sided to suit. But I have been frequently cheered by word which leads to think that the newspaper effusions, weak and faulty as they seem when leaving, are often appreciated. So that if this is one of the ways I can do any good, I am pleased.

Autumn is "lingering in the lap" of coming winter, for signs are many of the approach of the snow king. There is almost a sudden disappearance of wild life in many forms, but aerial and burrowing. The days are surprisingly shorter, giving much less sunlight.

So time moves on! And one great evidence is in Free Press notices of weddings of youngsters as known years ago, and even of some of those children's children.

Yours,
J. S. COLEMAN.

RUSSIANS BUYING BAGPIPES

Bagpipe factories of Scotland are making more instruments than in several years, and the demand from foreign countries has taken a jump. A Glasgow factory has just finished an order for Russia. Half of the bagpipes produced in Scotland are exported. Many of them go to Scots in Australia, Canada, and other parts of the world. One firm has regular customers in Brazil, China, Japan, India, Australia and Alaska. Among the firm's regular customers are the Prince of Wales and his piper, Alister Fletcher, of the Scots Guards. Bagpipes of popular use cost from $35 to $150. Those used in military bands usually cost about $75 each. The most expensive set made by the firm for a customer cost $1,500.

NOT REMEMBERED

"An old schoolmate" of yours wished to be remembered to you, Aunt Jennie; short, fat, with grey hair.

"Hi-m-in," said Aunt Jennie pensively. "I don't remember going to school with anyone who looked like that."

THE DRAPES AND COVERS

Cretones should be well shaken before being washed, then steeped in cold water to which a handful of salt has been added. This sets the colors. Have a good lather of soap flakes, but do not have the water too hot when the cretones are placed in it. Never rub soap on to cretones. Have plenty of clear rinsing waters, as it is essential that the material and colors should look clear and bright. Always have starch ready waiting to be used, and hang out each piece of cretonne as it is washed and stretched. Speed is vital, if the cretones on the line with their backs to the sunlight. Pull each piece into shape carefully, as this saves a great deal of ironing later. Cretones should be allowed to dry thoroughly, then they should be dampened down all over and rolled up tightly till next day.

BISHOP SAILS

Here is Bishop Fleming, bishop of the Arctic, photographed as he sailed from Montreal in the Alouette on a visit to England. While there will pay his respects to the Archbishop of Canterbury, Bishop Fleming narrowly escaped spending the entire winter in the Arctic. After travelling 8,470 miles this year in the Arctic he reached Herschel Island. The ship that was to have brought him out of the north could not reach the island and after being marooned there for sixteen days the Hudson's Bay Company Commissioner arrived in a specially chartered aeroplane and took him out.

MR. AND MRS. ROY MCKEOWN HONORED

Last Friday evening the members of the U.F.Y.P.O. gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McKeown to celebrate their recent marriage with an interlocking shower.

The program opened with the singing of "The Maple Leaf." Jack Stewart gave a recitation, followed by a musical number by Lawrence Lamb and Jack Smithurst.

The President, Howard Webster, then called upon Howard Switzer, who read the following address:

Acton, October 9th, 1936

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McKeown

Dear Laura and Roy:

We are happy to be with you this evening to offer you our sincere congratulations and to wish you health, happiness and good luck in your journey through life.

Your marriage has been of special interest to the members of our Club since you were once President, Roy, and you, Laura, one of our most enthusiastic workers of recent years. We are glad that we can look forward to having you with us in the future.

While we are wishing you the best of joy and prosperity, we know that there will be difficulties you will have to face.

God hath not promised skies always blue,
Flower strewn pathway all the day through;
But, God hath promised light for the day,
Guidance and help o'er all the way.

To convey to you in some measure our good wishes and affection, we ask you to accept these gifts. May they be pleasant reminders of happy times spent with your friends of the Actondale U.F.Y.P.O.

FRED ANTHONY,
HOWARD WEBSTER,
HOWARD SWITZER.

CODEX BIBLE RESTORED

After two years' work, the Codex Sinaiticus, the ancient Bible manuscript which was bought by England from Russia, for $500,000, has been restored. When it arrived in England it was in a quaint old tin box, its pages were tattered and crumpled, some of them were loose. It was wrapped in cotton. Now it has been beautifully bound in two volumes, which were shown for the first time recently to the trustees of the British Museum in London. Soft colored oak boards, specially prepared, encase the volumes, which have white Morocco backs. In gold letters upon them the Codex is described as "British Museum Additional MS. 43,725." Experts declare the Codex will now last for at least 500 years more.

SCORN AND CONTEMPT

A man, by indulging in the habit of scorn and contempt for others, is sure to descend to the level of what he despises to the opposite limits of admiration and enthusiastic reverence for excellence imparts to ourselves a portion of the qualities we admire. Here, as in everything else, humility is the surest path to exaltation.—Dr. Arnold.

SPRIT OF KINDNESS

Kindness is contagious. The spirit of harmony trickles down by a thousand secret channels into the inmost recesses of the household life. One truly affectionate soul in a family will exert a sweetening and harmonizing influence upon all its members. It is hard to be angry in the presence of importunately good-nature. It is well-nigh impossible to be misde in face of a cheerful and generous helplessness. Beginning with the highest, the oliment drops even upon those who are unconscious or careless of it, and the whole house is presently filled with its fragrance.—Van Dyke.

Knox Church Observes 90th Anniversary

been a great singer. They think that, as the saying is, "One must sow his wild oats." Let us look at this from the viewpoint of Jesus. Was Jesus Christ a great singer. Did He stand up for what was right? We also must face up to life. The incarnate Christ is the only solution of life. Jesus is the pattern we must follow.

Look at the Tabernacle, and see that all things are well. There were three courts in the Tabernacle, and these represent three classes of people. The outer court represents the self-made man, who simply lives to make money and what he gets out of life, but he is just a partial success. The inner court represents the self-made man, who, besides making money, also becomes useful in the community, and possibly goes to parliament as the representative of the people. But he, also is only a partial success. The holy of holies represents the man who, besides making a business success, and being useful in his community, also follows the pattern laid down by Jesus Christ. He has made a complete success of this life. To which class do we belong? Christ does not judge us by the amount of money we have, or what position we hold in life, but He does judge us by the success we make of what we have. We must follow the pattern set before us. If we follow the star to Jesus Christ, then we can leave the rest to Him.

Dr. McKerrill is an eloquent speaker, and uses illustrations very aptly to bring out the desired points in his discourse.

The congregation of Knox Church was joined at the evening service by the other congregations of the community, and by Mr. W. J. Millon-Morrow, pastor of the United Church, led in the opening prayer.

At this service the choir rendered two well executed anthems, Mr. Wm. Burton taking the solo part. The male quartet, Messrs. W. Burton, Alex. Mann, Fred Sult and George Musselle, also sang an excellent number.

During the day a special anniversary offering was received and met with a hearty response by the congregation. The annual fund supper in connection with the anniversary event is being held a week later, on Monday, October 19th.

AGRICULTURE REVENUE UP

The total gross agricultural revenue of British Columbia is estimated at $42,419,992 for 1935, an increase of $2,593,851, or 6.51 per cent, over 1935. Increases are shown in the revenue from farm animals, wool, dairy products, fruit and vegetables, poultry and eggs, fodder crops, hops, nursery stock, and fur-farming. Minor decreases are shown in the revenue from grains, potatoes, honey, tobacco, and seeds. Compared with the preceding year, slightly higher average prices were recorded in most branches of the agricultural industry.

GREATER NUMBER TOURISTS EXPECTED VISIT MEXICO

Down in Mexico the tourist trade is booming and the Mexicans are no slow at taking advantage of the opportunities which tourism offers. Last year Mexico valued her tourist trade at about $60,000,000, according to the Tourist Bureau of the Canadian National Railways, and with the opening of the national highway from Laredo, Texas, to Mexico City, a much larger tourist traffic is anticipated. The trade in native curios—rugs, pottery, straw and wooden goods, and Mexican silver and jewellery—has become rapidly commercialised and increased sale of Mexican goods are expected with the growth in the tourist traffic.
