

Personals

Mr. George Soper, Jr. of Kitchener, spent the week-end at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McKay, of Toronto, spent the latter part of the week at the home of Mrs. E. Wansbrough.

Mr. and Mrs. George Agnew and Maister George Edward, of Toronto, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. George Agnew.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McKeechle and Miss Flora Jean McKeechle, of Jamestown, N.Y., visited over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. George Soper.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wansbrough and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wansbrough and family, of Toronto, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. E. Wansbrough.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McGregor, who have been visiting in San Francisco, Cal., for the past two months, returned last week and are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. D. Talbot.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Muller, Guelph, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Gertrude May, to George S. Leslie, son of Mr. Harvey Leslie, of Aylmer, the marriage to take place in April.

THE WHITHAM-McKEOWN WEDDING

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized last Saturday, at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. McKeechle, when her daughter, Josephine, became the bride of Joseph Whitham, Rev. Dr. Morrow officiating. The ceremony took place in a bower of ferns, daffodils and pussy willows. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lloyd. Mrs. Norman Veit, who played the wedding march, also sang, during the signing of the register, "Sweet and Holy."

The bride looked charming in satin-faced shell pink tulle, carrying roses and baby's breath, and wearing a cameo brooch, a gift of the groom. Miss Olive Cannon was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink silk net and carrying a bouquet of roses and baby's breath. The groom was attended by Mr. Gordon Cook. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a wedding supper. Later the bride and groom left for a motor trip to the United States. The travelling attire of the bride was a dusty pink triple sheer gown, a grey coat, with black accessories. The happy couple will reside in Acton on their return.

CARE OF THE SOW AND LITTER

The brood sow should be in a thrifty condition when bred and maintained in breeding condition, neither too fat nor too thin, during pregnancy.

Daily exercise is necessary and can be ensured by providing pasture in summer and feeding in an outside lot in winter, previous to farrowing, at some little distance from the sleeping quarters. During winter some fresh sod, green feed and roots will help approximate summer pasture conditions. Care must be taken to prevent the sow from becoming constipated. Bran should be added to the regular ration two weeks or more previous to farrowing. A suitable meal mixture for pregnant sows consists of 2 parts oat chaff and 1 part shorts or ground wheat, supplemented with a little skim milk or 5 per cent. tankage.

To prevent hairlessness or rot in new born pigs, one ounce of potassium iodide should be dissolved in one gallon of water and each sow given one tablespoonful of the solution two or three times weekly in feed. If the sow farrows during cold weather, artificial heat will be necessary, and special care should be taken to prevent chilling of the new born pigs. The use of a small amount of cut straw for bedding, and guard rails, will help prevent tramping and crushing of the little pigs.

When the sow becomes hungry after farrowing, she may be given a little warm thin slop, containing oat chaff and bran, after which the regular nursing feed may be introduced and gradually increased over a period of several days, to all the sow can eat in two or three feeds daily. A good nursing ration consists of equal parts oat chaff and shorts, supplemented with 3 pounds of skim milk per pound of meal, or 10 per cent. of tankage and a little bran if available.

If a little sweet skim milk with sifted oat chaff, shorts, etc., are provided, for the little pigs in a creep they will learn to feed at an early age and receive no setback at weaning. Castration should be attended to when pigs are four to six weeks of age so that they will be healed before weaning. Weaning is generally advisable at six to eight weeks. Sows and litters as outlined above at the Experimental Farm, Indian Head, Saskatchewan, have invariably given good results.

FREE FEED

At a recent bazaar in the Granite City a native was seen prowling about from stall to stall holding something under his overcoat. Finally he put his burden in the bran tub.

"Do you want a penny dip?" asked the attendant.

"No me!" was the reply. "I was just giving my rabbit a feed."

George Wallace

CLOTHES SHOP

123 Yonge St.,
Toronto
(Opposite Ryrie-Birks)

THE HEAD

EYESIGHT SERVICE

OFFERS — Expert skill; latest styles in Eye Glasses, comfort and lowest prices.

—GIVE US A CALL—

Phone 1329 for Appointment

E. P. HEAD

58 ST. GEORGE'S SQUARE

GUELPH

GREGORY THEATRE

FRIDAY, MARCH 19th

"CAPTAIN'S KID"

A picture for the whole family, starring Sybil Jason, May Robson and Guy Kibee. Comedy, "Just Plain Folks." Cartoon, "Happy Family." Chapter 9 of "Flash Gordon."

SATURDAY, MARCH 20th

"COME CLOSER FOLKS"

Miles-a-minute fun with James Dunn, giving the town the works. Comedy, "His Marriage Mixup." Comedy, "Movie Maniacs." Cartoon, "Tetched in the Head." Novelty, "Stars of To-morrow." Fox News.

MONDAY, MARCH 22nd

"SING ME A LOVE SONG"

A Cuckoo cast from heads to toes, a musical riot where anything goes starring Patricia Ellis, Zasu Pitts, Hugh Herbert. Comedy, "Timid Young Man." Novelty, "Did You Know That?" Treasure Chest, "Fast Friends."

COMING

"BORN TO DANCE"

Starring Eleanor Powell.

It's The EARLY BIRD

That Makes

MOST MONEY

IT'S the early bird that gets the worm. The early bird hasn't so much competition. It's the same with the early chick. It hasn't so much competition—so it makes most money.

1. Brooding is well on before the rush of Spring work. 2. The early cockerel gets to market when prices are best. 3. The early pullet lays best when egg prices average highest. And 4, she lays BIG eggs in the Fall, when big eggs are at highest premium.

BRAY "Extra-Proof" Chicks enable you to cash in on all these advantages, with the added advantages of extra size, strength and producing power. Get Bray Chicks under your hand right away. Or better, make a head start by getting started chicks—2 to 4 weeks old mixed chicks, or sexed pullets, or sexed cockerels. There are some real bargains in our "Daily Special" list—ask for it.

Fred W. Bray Limited

Chick Hatchery

GEO. BROWN Agent

NORVAL — ONTARIO

THE LION AND THE MIRROR

Terr's solved the inhabitants of Drossend, a little town in Lower Austria, when a lion escaped from a travelling circus. They fled from the streets to the nearest shelter and left the lion to rush down the deserted streets alone. Its keeper, after it, but in vain. The beast would pay no heed to his calls or threats. Suddenly it caught sight of its own image in the mirror of a shop front. It stopped immediately. Then with a great roar the lion sprang at his enemy.

With a crash of broken glass it found itself inside the shop, which, fortunately, was empty. It stood there cowed and intimidated by its strange surroundings. It was bleeding from its badly cut paws. Apparently it had its adventurous spirit left it for when its keeper arrived on the scene it immediately allowed itself to be captured without resistance and followed its keeper home.

The Good-Night Story of 1937 Hockey in Acton

(Continued from Page One)

was no score. Quinn drew a cheer from Elora fans when he took a pass from Fisher, in front of the net, and banged it past Woods. Acton were starting to lag now and getting a little careless in covering their men. Joe Woods nearly had another one for the Tanners, but his shot hit the post. Walters also looked like a sure thing but Brown beat him to it. Towards the end of the period the Tanners started to turn it on and gave Brown lots of work to do. Woods was called on to make a lovely stop when one of the Tocks was right on top of him. Fisher finally banged in Elora's third goal when he was allowed to roam around inside the Acton blue line, and he snared the puck away. Bob Anderson had a very close call when Brown dropped his shot, then lost the puck, but it stopped right on the line and nobody knew where it was till the bell rang and Brown got out of the road. The period ended 4-3 for Acton. No penalties.

The third stanza was another lullaby affair, with nothing at all to get excited over. Ilo Marzo scored the tying goal for Elora when he banged the puck past Woods while attempting to clear the puck. Brother Ezio had passed to him. Acton sent down a dangerous three-man rush but it was broken up at the Elora defence. For a couple of minutes both teams turned it on and dished up good hockey, but it was very spotty. Illico put the home team one up on a nice solo rush when he went through the whole team and eld the puck past Woods. Ilo Marzo just about had his fourth goal of the night when he took another of Terry's passes and went right in on Brown, but missed the net. Quinn made it 6-4 for the locals when he took Fisher's pass and came in nice from the wing to shoot one past Herb. A minute later, defence man Lindsay got on his horse again and rifled one from the blue line that again nicked the corner. Elora came right back with another threatening try but Woods was on the job. Ilo and Terry pulled off another one of their smart passing plays for the tying goal, with Ilo again doing the scoring. Mooney had enough perfect chances to score three or four goals, but he couldn't even hit the net with his shots. He was in "time and time again. Acton again started to take things easy and Elora had a very close call when three men broke, with just Woods to beat, but they couldn't beat him. The final goal was scored about 15 seconds before the end of the game, when the Acton players watched Runkles and Walter fight for the puck in front of Woods, with Walter finally battling it in. There were no penalties in this period.

The line-up was: Elora—Goal, Brown; defence, Dryer, P. Runkles; centre, Fisher; wings, Quinn, J. Runkles; subs, Selling, Matland, Bilco, Walker; sub goalie, Flagg. Acton—Goal, Woods; defence, Kentner and Walters; centre, Morton; wings, Mooney, E. Marzo; subs, Terry, I. Marzo, Lindsay, Woods, Anderson.

Referee—F. Moore, Fergus.

Acton and Elora met, but it wasn't in O. H. A. play-offs and what a difference. A couple of hundred turned out to see these two teams in Acton last night and Acton took the tuck in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

Herbert Coulson, 59, is in hospital at Hamilton with serious head injuries suffered when he was hurled through the door of his car in a collision near Nelson. It is feared his skull is fractured. A car, driven by Jack Keyes, recently Assistant Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, New York, now transferred to Montreal, collided with the one driven by Coulson. Keyes father, one-time fire chief at Galt, died in Toronto, and Keyes was en route to Galt to complete funeral arrangements. He escaped injury in the crash.

OUSTED FROM PARTY

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts referred to Sir James Dunn.

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for St. Lawrence, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behavior" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follow-up of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the Ontario Legislature at Toronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the people's representative sat idly, but not sapinely by." Dr. Roberts