Limehouse

The seventeenth anniversary of the United Church was held last Sunday and Monday. On Sunday, Rev. E. M. Morrow, M.A., Ph.D., Acton, preached marriage and evening.

Friends here were very inspired by the sermon, dwelling on the fact that Jesus Christ stands out among all races and classes, in all ages as being the one, unique in all respects, able to lift us up and adequate for mankind's every need.

He pleaded for a recognition of Him by confession of sin, and giving of lives of happy service in His Church.

The choir rendered special music at both services. In the morning a ladies' quartette, and in the evening a solo by Miss Norma Stephenson, accompanied by piano and violin, were special features.

On Monday evening, the annual garden party was very fine, in spite of threatening rain. The men and women of the church are to be congratulated on the splendid preparations and the excellent program which was rendered. Mr. Ralph Gordon, Toronto, was the principal entertainer.

The audience with his wonderful and surprising cartoon all full of wholesome humor, and he kept everybody in a state of laughter and rapt attention throughout his selections. Mr. Crawford Clay, of Guelph, baritone soloist, rendered two very appropriate solos, and also sang in a duet with Miss Moore, also of Guelph, who accompanied his solos. Their selections were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The Acton Knox Sunday School Orchestra, under the able leadership of Mr. Spivogel, gave several excellent numbers. Mr. Chas. Landsborough played the coronet in his usual capable style; Vernon Agnew played the violin, showing his splendid talent. Other accompanists of the evening were Miss Margaret Brown, Acton; Mrs. Wm. A very pleasant event took place on Friday evening, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lowrie, when the members of the Young People's Society gathered to discuss the work of their members, Miss Melrose Wilson, a bride-to-be. A sing-song opened the program. A reading was given by Mrs. G. W. Bridle, and violin solos by Mr. Joseph Dyer; also a vocal solo by Miss Wilma Moore; and a very few appropriate words by Rev. S. Johnston, B.A. Mr. Neil McPhail was then called upon to read the following address:

Dear Melrose:

Our friends and neighbors, and fellow members of the Young People's Society, of which you are a valued member and efficient office bearer have met to-night to congratulate you on the step you are about to take and to extend to you our best wishes that happiness, prosperity and a long life of service may be your lot.

The young people here assembled, and others of the village, recall several profitable and interesting meetings you prepared as Citizen-ship Convener. Out of these and similar meetings has come a spirit of co-operation and fellowship, which has made us realize we were a group of Christian young people.

Then many of us recall very clearly your splendid ability, exhibited as "Lobel Simp-Scott," in that never-to-be-forgotten drama, "The Old-fashioned Mother," and as "Arlene Truesdale," in "Where's Grandma," your faithfulness to practice, and willingness to demonstrate to us your kind and gentle disposition.

While so many pleasant memories are ours to-night and more might be said yet, time and space do not permit, we would like to show our appreciation and good wishes in a tangible way. Thus we ask you to accept these gifts as an expression which words do not and cannot convey.

May you know in your new sphere, with its added responsibilities, as well as its joys, that the good wishes and the prayers of your friends here is that the smile and blessing of a kindly Providence may rest upon you and yours and that your life may be an example for those whom you shall lead.

Signed on behalf of the Young People's Society,

G. W. BRIDLE, President.

At the proper time Miss Edith Lee and Master Bobby Gilbertson, dressed as miniature bride and groom, drew in a prettily decorated wagon, laden with gifts, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March.

Melrose, although completely taken by surprise, thanked her friends for their good wishes and expressions of kindness and invited them all to visit her in her new home in Saginaw. Lunch was then served and a social hour enjoyed by all. Mr. Bridle was a very able chairman.

Mr. Y. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wilson, of Alberta, and his bride, are visiting relatives in this district, on their honeymoon.
