The foregoing Statement will not suffer by comparison with that of any other Company.

The Dividends of Return Premiums declared by the Directors in 1873, are paid to the assured, as their Premiums fall due, in 1874, in conformity with the rules of the Company.

The Directors have ordered that hereafter dividends be paid to all entitled thereto on payment of the second premium; thus, those insuring in 1874 will receive a dividend in 1875, and older policy holders will receive two dividends in that year.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company is now in the Thirtieth year of a uniformly successful and useful existence, and never has its future appeared more promising than at the present time. It was organized, and has always been conducted, for the members. It has sought to furnish the greatest amount of insurance at the lowest cost consistent with perfect security. The commissions paid to agents, and the salaries paid to officers and employees, have been moderate. The dividends have always, from the organization of the Company, been declared annually, and paid at the time agreed on. The true interests of the members have always been the main consideration of the Directors. It is the only Company in the United States that for Twenty-Seven successive years has never failed to Declare and Pay an Annual Dividend.

There are other simple methods of comparing the relative economy displayed in the management of Life Insurance Companies, and the Mutual Benefit invites a comparison with any other Company, and bases its claims to consideration upon the ground that, OTHER THINGS BEING EQUAL, the Company which carries the largest amount of insurance with the least amount of expense is fairly entitled to the claim of Superior Economy.
