

BRIEF MENTIONS.

October.

I cannot call these autumn days,
"The saddest of the year,"
Nor o'er the summer glories gone,
Shed one regretful tear.

To me a richer beauty rests
Upon the tinted leaves,—
For me a greater gladness lies
Within the garnered sheaves.

They whisper of life's hopes fulfilled,
Of restful days to come—
They mind me of the better land,
And of its "harvest home."

H. L. B.

Fred. S. Erskine and family have returned to the home of their first love—Waukegan.

Aldridge's large new wagon and blacksmith shop bears evidence of increasing business.

It is altogether likely that the new railroad will run through the park, west of the present tracks.

Remember all the Chicago daily papers and popular periodicals are kept on sale at Charles Page's store.

Our assertion that real estate is on the rise was practically proven correct several times during the past month.

The arrival of a very young lady added one to a happy family at Capt. Morgan's home on Saturday last.

McDonald & Son are constantly increasing their stock of lumber, doubtless in anticipation of renewed activities in the building line.

Wm. E. Cumming & Co. did a very large business during the fruit season, and we are glad to know it. "Will" is obliging and deserving.

It affords us pleasure to welcome as new residents of the Park the families of Francis W. Coŕy, J. Barrell and Messrs. Everingham and Cook. All from the city.

The little infant boy born to Mrs. and Fred. S. Erskine died on September 30th. The parents feel keenly the loss; but in their sorrow they have the sympathy of all.

The young ladies of Highland Hall take a walk every pleasant morning, and drink in, as it were, the clear pure atmosphere which the park affords. They are a happy company, and we are proud of them.

The extensive repairs to the Presbyterian church edifice are nearly completed and the structure inside and out bears the marks of master workmen. Mr. W. M. Goodridge had supervision of the work and, as usual, displayed good taste. Union service will be held next Sunday, Oct. 21st.

"Ladies, be very careful when near horses," is a warning which Mrs. Vail did not heed the other day, for when that lady was in close proximity to her pony's feet the little animal kicked her severely on the side of the head. It was a cruel blow, but fortunately no very serious results followed. Mrs. Vail's condition is improving rapidly, and it is hoped she may be about again in a few days.

W. R. Kenny and his assistants are busy night and day trying to keep up with their work. Mr. Kenny's store is now "chock full" of new goods, having received a heavy stock of stoves, furnaces and ranges, and has also added largely to his supply of hardware, nails, etc. Not only is Kenny stocking up and daily increasing in wealth, but in addition, another boy has been added to his household; he arrived on the last of September, in time to be invoiced.

City Hall Items.

Mayor Sweetland appreciates the fact that to be the head of the city government means work.

Ald. Cushman is in New York, having gone thither on business.

Ald. Morgan has just returned from a Western business trip.

Ald. Millard has been superintending extensive improvements to his delightful home.

Ald. McFarlane enjoys his time, when not otherwise engaged, in riding and driving. "Mc." is a great admirer of good horse flesh, and he always keeps the best of animals.

Ald. Flint, having been fighting most of his life and retiring with the honors of high titles, is disposed to take matters quietly and live at peace with all men.

Ald. Green as usual is "fine sir, fine," and in his good natured way makes others as happy as himself.

City Clerk Finny reports city business as follows:

Leander Bander, from Chicago, appointed city marshal.
