Miss Page is spending a few days with Mrs. Bingham on Prospect avenue.

This cold weather makes large demands on the purses of Chicago charitable people. Yes, but they will save it all in lower-priced ice next summer.

There will be no Ossoli club this week. Being an Italian plant, from the sunny clime of that fair land, it could not endure the rigors of our old-fashioned winter weather.

Postmaster Dooley has a set of china, Haviland we presume, so that cold or rainy or extra busy days he sets up a little private restaurant for the comfort of himself and his assistant.

Mr. Denman has rented and occupied the flat over Raffin & Baker's office. He moved in just as this cold snap set in and found how good it was to be on neighborly terms with a coal dealer.

It is putting the case mildly when we say the teachers and pupils of the Baptist Sunday school were not a little pleased last Lord's day morning to see Supt. D. M. Erskine, Jr., and Mrs. Erskine in their accustomed place in church and school. We hardly know which was the happier, the school or the superintendent and his bride.

According to the most reliable information we can get, there are not far from 500 water pipes, pumps, etc. frozen up in this city. Nearly every home, except Ravinook, has one or more of these interesting incidents.

People are smart out in Nebraska; at least one man is and he is an editor. When a man don't pay for his paper, he quietly introduces a local and sets the man's name bottom up. saouf uqof has gone to Omaha for a few days.

August Benson, the ice man has enlarged his artificial pond, cleaned it out and filled it a short time ago with Lake water so as to have good ice therefrom. He has also enlarged upwards the size of his ice house so that he can store a much larger quantity than before.

When Fred Schumacher looked under the front windows of his drug store Saturday last where he kept has apollinaris and other harmless beverages, he found a dozen or so bursted bottles, and the beverage in a solid state, as they sell milk in Siberia.

A Massachusetts man has just resigned his position as post master after fifty years service. If the public library of his town profited as it should by our scale, it has received at least $16000 worth of books from him, quite a little library itself you see.

Some Lake County statistician has estimated that this cold snap will put from $75,000 to $100,000 in wages in harvesting ice into the pockets of workingmen inside our county limits: of course most of it is done over on the west side of the county in Antioch and adjacent towns. This is one of God's way of helping lots of poor men pay their bills.

Some twenty years ago when the ice crop on the Hudson failed we wrote a paragraph to the effect that New York ice men use the inexhaustible supply of Lake Champlain, and New York papers at once asked what lunatic is writing for the Rutland Herald. We lived to see millions of tons of ice stacked along the shores of Champlain for New York market and now it is a regular thing. We once saw a ship in Boston harbor loading with ice for far away Calcutta; today they make it on the spot as wanted in India. Sixty years ago when enthusiastic men were talking about heavy trans-Atlantic steamships, the eminent scientists of the day proved the utter impossibility of the thing, but the enthusiasts went ahead with their ships. "The world, he do move," said Elder Jasper, and the old negro was right.
