

RAVINIA ITEMS.

The monthly meeting and social will be held next Friday evening. Notices will be posted later announcing the place of meeting.

Many friends will be glad to note that Ralph Hardacre has completed the course in the Englewood High school and will graduate next week.

Last Sunday was Children's Day in the Sunday school, and they monopolized the time, too. The little folks sang, read and recited with an interest and earnestness that would do credit to many grown-up people. The program was very fine and was very much enjoyed by all. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers, which work was done by the Mercy and Help committee of the Epworth League.

RAVINIA IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY.

The society met on Monday evening. An effort was made to begin the meeting promptly and it was finally called to order without the secretary, treasurer, and the minutes of previous meeting being present.

Mr. Kellogg proposed to build a bath house at the lake, so the society appointed a committee to assist. The treasurer reported $3.78 on hand. A move was made toward securing a sidewalk on Judson avenue north to Ding's and Willoughby's connecting with the one at the church. A committee consisting of five ladies, with Mrs. Comstock as chairman was appointed to arrange a picnic on the 4th of July.

The literary committee for the next meeting consists of W. P. Gehrty, L. M. Comstock and John Dings. W. C. McKenzie took charge of the program for the evening which is as follows:

SOLO—"Only a Rosebud," Marion Kellogg.

RECITATION—"Lochinvar," Annie Nichols.

TALK on horses and mules by J. C. Coe; the subject of which was "The Mule Balked," and was appreciated by all.

TALK on Artesian Wells, by W. B. McKenzie.

SONG—"Forget-me-not," by Annie McKenzie.

RECITATION—"Wherefore am de Justice of the Case?" by Maud Ingalls.

RECITATION—"The Revolutionary Rising," Rev. E. J. Heathcote.

SONG—"Out on the Deep," O. G. Kellogg.

READING—"For Conscience Sake," Rev. E. J. Heathcote.

The readings by Mr. Heathcote were thoroughly enjoyed and heartily applauded, as also was Mr. Coe's talk on "The Mule." Taken altogether the program was a good one and the committee deserve great credit.
