Mrs. A. Freie of Chicago spent a week with Miss Lilian Freie.

Ex-President James A. Garfield, one of our martyrs, was born 66 years ago today.

Miss Lena Ford of Chicago was the guest of the Misses Alford over Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Daniel Eyer and her daughter, Mrs. Vanderberg, spent a few days with Mrs. Smoot last week.

Mrs. Bahr, wife of the florist, was taken to a hospital in Chicago yesterday to be operated upon for two cancer tumors.

Miss Louise Long and Miss Mamie McCarl of Chicago spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. King.

George S. Bennett and family, who have resided several years in the late John A. Lander house on Belle avenue, have moved to Chicago.

Mrs. Elvira S. Green has gone, with her daughter, Mrs. J. R. McQuiston, to visit her sister in Barry, down in Pike county just above St. Louis.

News of Mrs. Humble's death was received a year ago last Saturday. She was one of the Lord's own, who did good without ostentation or in any way proclaiming her own goodness.

St. Mary's church people are organizing a large chorus choir for special Christmas services in their church. Mrs. King is one of the prominent leaders in this excellent movement.

Rev. E. K. Yeakel, of Chicago, will preach in the First United Evangelical church Sunday morning and evening. In connection with the morning service the society will celebrate the Lord's supper.

When Dr. Anderson prayed for the governor of the state last Sunday morning, he had in mind of course the office, not its present incumbent, for Tanner is beyond praying for. See 1 John 5:16.

The city attorney has been meekly enduring one of Job's comforters on the back of his neck and he has come to have a great deal of respect for the man of Uz.

It is a good time for owners and agents to look after shutting off the water from their vacant houses. One agent neglected this a year or two since and involved the owner in damages from $50 to $100.

Rev. H. H. Thoren's home was entered by burglars Sunday night while the family were at church, who got a little silver ware, - the cash the faithful pastor of course took with him to put into the contribution box.

The Baptist clergy of this city are presumed to have attended the Baptist Congress in Chicago this week. One important question was whether churches had a right to call pastors to an account for their opinions on the free coinage of silver or similar questions.

The Woman's Catholic Order of Foresters grand masquerade ball Tuesday evening in the opera house was a grand success. There were 75 couples on the floor. The music was by Prof. O'Connor's Orchestra and the grand march was at 10 o'clock.

There was a unique case in Judge Holmes court Wednesday afternoon. The suit was brought by the Rev. Mr. First, former pastor of the Deerfield Lutheran church for his back salary. The case was called and continued until Saturday the 27th. In the meantime it may be settled. Let it be so by all means.

Stillman Bingham Jamieson of Chicago, a grandson of Mrs. Mary L. Bingham of this city was married Tuesday evening, Nov. 16th, in Bloomington to Miss Maurine E. H. Green of that city. Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson will have their home, a new one built expressly for them, at 4510 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago, where their friends will find them after Jan. 1st, 1898.

Yesterday was the day for a regular meeting of the Ossoli Club.

Miss Annie Nolan, who has been keeping books for Robertson & Nolan since they bought out the Fletcher Lumber company, has severed her connection with that firm.

Miss Mamie Fribert, formerly assistant postmistress in this city, who resigned last spring and has since been at her home in Juneau, Wis., was in town Monday visiting her many friends and acquaintances. She is visiting in Waukegan for a few weeks, and then will return to her home.

T. E. Young, who has the contract for building G. S. Cole's new house on St. John's avenue, met with a painful accident yesterday. A hatchet which he was using while at work slipped, narrowly missed his face and cut a deep gash two inches long in his wrist. Dr. Ingalls was called, and speedily dressed the wound of the sufferer.

The accommodation train which usually leaves Glencoe at 6:10 in the morning did not do so Monday. Just before starting time a way freight came down the line and demoralized the passenger train. A combination coach and two passenger cars were derailed, the former being badly smashed up. Two of the cars stood on end, resting against each other like a gable. It is a wonder that several were not killed. The wreck is attributed to a mistake in the signal. Travel was delayed only until about nine o'clock.

Prof. Rush Rhees, of the Newton Theological Seminary, Mass., spent Wednesday night with Mrs. Mary R. Hammond, his aunt. He made an address at the Baptist Congress this week in Chicago, on the question whether the the teachings of the Apostles are of equal authority with those of Christ, the Lord. Newton used to be sound and all right thirty years ago, and we guess it is sound today, and Professor Rhees is all right.
