Miss Helen Holladay of Chicago, has been visiting the Misses Alford the past week.

Miss E. L. Erskine has had a severe attack of the grip this week, but is much better today.

Miss Julia Morgan, daughter of Capt. O. H. Morgan, is visiting with relatives in Denver, Col.

Mr. Partingheimer, of the Bluff City Electric railway, was a business visitor in the Park, Monday.

A. W. Waldo, of Libertyville, one of our ex-supervisors, visited with his son in this city Tuesday.

Mr. Denzel, brother of Herman, the tonsorialist, visited in the Park this week and cut hair and shaved while Herman took in the sights of Chicago last Monday.

Roger Moore, formerly conductor on the C. & N. W. railway, is visiting with his family. Mr. Moore is now yardmaster for a railroad running into Des Moines.

A wall flower, at Dunn's news store is attracting much attention. It is a rarity in this country, being a native of England and is very fragrant. It is from Bahr's greenhouses.

Workmen from the electric light plant here have been at work in Lake Forest this week putting lights in the depot, and the platform of that institution is badly torn up in consequence.

So thick was the fog Wednesday that the flagman, John Hart, had to desert his post in the sky parlor and stand at the gates on Central avenue to warn passers by of the approach of trains.

Miss Reese of Evanston, a former teacher of the public school, visited that institution Friday and with friends Saturday. Miss Reese is now supplying in the South Evanston schools.

Jay and Justin Weddell, who have been visiting at Mrs. M. R. Hammond's for a week, went to Morgan Park Tuesday, where Mrs. Weddell is visiting prior to going to her new home at Davenport, Ia.

Notwithstanding the advance in miners wages and the certainty that coal will be higher, A. Robertson, successor to Robertson & Nolan continues to fill orders promptly at the same rates as heretofore. Telephone 67.

A party of young people, mostly of the United Evangelical Church, enjoyed a sleigh ride to north Northfield last Saturday evening, their objective point being the home of H. Wessling, where they were treated to a fine supper and royally entertained.

A trip to Bahr's greenhouses revealed Mr. Bahr picking white carnations for the Chicago market. He told us they bring the highest price, and we certainly think they should from the looks of them. They have extra long stems, are extra large and very fragrant. The News man recently got a bunch of him which at the end of five days seemed in as fresh condition as when picked.

Miss King, who has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. A. Robertson, was called home by the illness of her mother, Wednesday noon.

Andrew Goldberg, who has been conducting a gentleman's furnishing store in Kenosha the past three or four months, last Monday sold out his stock, fixtures and good will, and is once more a citizen of the Park.

A friend who was born north of the Grampian hill, loaned us Dr. John H. Barrows' last book, "A World Pilgrimage," being an account, such as only a scholar like himself could write, of his trip around the world. We read it in this fashion; the first thing after the evening meal we gather in the library all the family, and the head of the household reads a chapter aloud, making running comments as he reads and all enjoy it immensely. One advantage of being conducted around the world by such a man as Dr. Barrows is, that he not only sees thousands of things, places, etc. the ordinary traveler would not see, but more than that he sees, has invitations and is received into the society of scores of the best men of all these foreign countries whom the ordinary traveler would not even see.

Herbert F. Evans, the erstwhile manager of the News is, as our readers all know, is a student at Colgate University in Hamilton, N. Y. A few days since he met an old man 85 years old who used to know his father when Mayor Evans was a young man down in central New York. When the old man learned the collegian knew R. G. Evans, he went on to ask sundry questions as to how he had prospered in his western home. And then being drawn out by the student he made various comments about the early life, character and conduct of that young R. G. Evans when he taught school in South Trenton and clerked it in Williams store nearly three years, and so Herbert and the old man had a great time for about an hour and it was sharp in the young man to let the old man say all he would about the aforesaid R. G. Evans, before he told him he was Mr. Evans' son. But there was this pleasant reflection—the old man had said nothing he wished he had not and Herbert had not heard anything to make him blush. But it was a sharp dodge on the old man after all and that our young friend has not grown stupid or rusty by going to college.
