A COLLOQUY.

The McQuiston family came out Sunday, the first time since "Mac's" return from the Levant: he wanted to see Frank B. Green's wonderful son and heir. After a careful physical, phrenological and psychological examination of the youngster, he said, or we supposed he said, from what we can learn.

"Well, Frank this boy of yours promises well, very well indeed, but to tell you the truth, I don't think he is quite as smart as my boys were at his age."

Rising from his swivel chair Mr. Green replied: "See here, John, I know your kids are bright, they would be, as my sister is their mother. Now you just wait till my Lester lines up with those boys down in the Chicago University one of these days and then see where yours will be. Eh? Have one of these choice Havana's Mac." Thus endeth the colloquy.

There was a crystal wedding last Friday evening at the beautiful home of Emil Rudolph, at the bottom of the "Pocket". Mr. Bahr did the decorating in his usually happy and successful manner.
