HIGHLAND PARK, ILL., FEBRUARY 4, 1899.

NO 10.

CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT.

A large and fashionable audience who had braved the severity of the weather nicely filled the Presbyterian church on Tuesday night, and gave themselves over to the thorough enjoyment of an exceptionally strong program provided by the Choral society on the occasion of their first received responses in encore from each of the soloists.

Upon the platform were Mrs. H. C. Carver, president of the choral society, Miss Eva Emmet Wycoff, director, the soloists and the entire chorus in evening garb.

Benedicts' "Hunting Song" was strikingly given by the chorus as the voice and greatly strengthened the favorable impression he has previously made upon our lovers of melody.

Mr. Victor Garwood, the talented organist, gave his hearers a distinct treat in his masterly reproduction of Dubois' "Troccata." In response to the emphatic demands of the audience he gave as an encore the ever sweet concert of the second season.

The auditorium had been tastefully decorated with greens whose piney odor mingled with the subtler perfumes of the cat flowers worn in profusion by the ladies present. The entire program was carried out in detail as announced, but the enthusiastic audience demanded and initial number. Miss Wycoff directed with characteristic exactness and effect.

Mr. Holmes Cowper, the widely known Chicago tenor, rendered with splendid effect "O, that we two were Maying," and "I'll sing thee songs of Araby;" the latter evoking particular praise. Mr. Cowper was in good and beautiful "Annie Laurie," an effort marked by brilliancy of touch and poetic interpretation.

Miss Lucile Stevenson is the fortunate possessor of a sweetly modulated soprano voice of unusual range which was, on this occasion, under the most perfect control. Her first notes captivated the expectant listen-
