

Hunting and Fishing at Koshkonong Lake.

On a long tongue of land that is bounded on one side by the beautiful Rock River, and on the other by the shallow, hard bottomed, Koshkonong lake, in the midst of the rolling whose fresh and varied beauty has made Wisconsin famous, almost hidden by tall and spreading elms, ash, and maple trees, stands today the newly erected club house, home of the "Highland Park Rod and Gun Club.

The willow fringed river flows very close to the club house, out into the lake. And what a lake it is for the hunter and the fisherman! Large stretches of its surface are hidden by the close growth of wild rice and celery. Plants that have attracted wild ducks every year by the hundred thousand, as a paradise for feeding. Here is a place known among sportsmen as the finest spot in the northwest for hunting the renowned "canvas-back" duck.

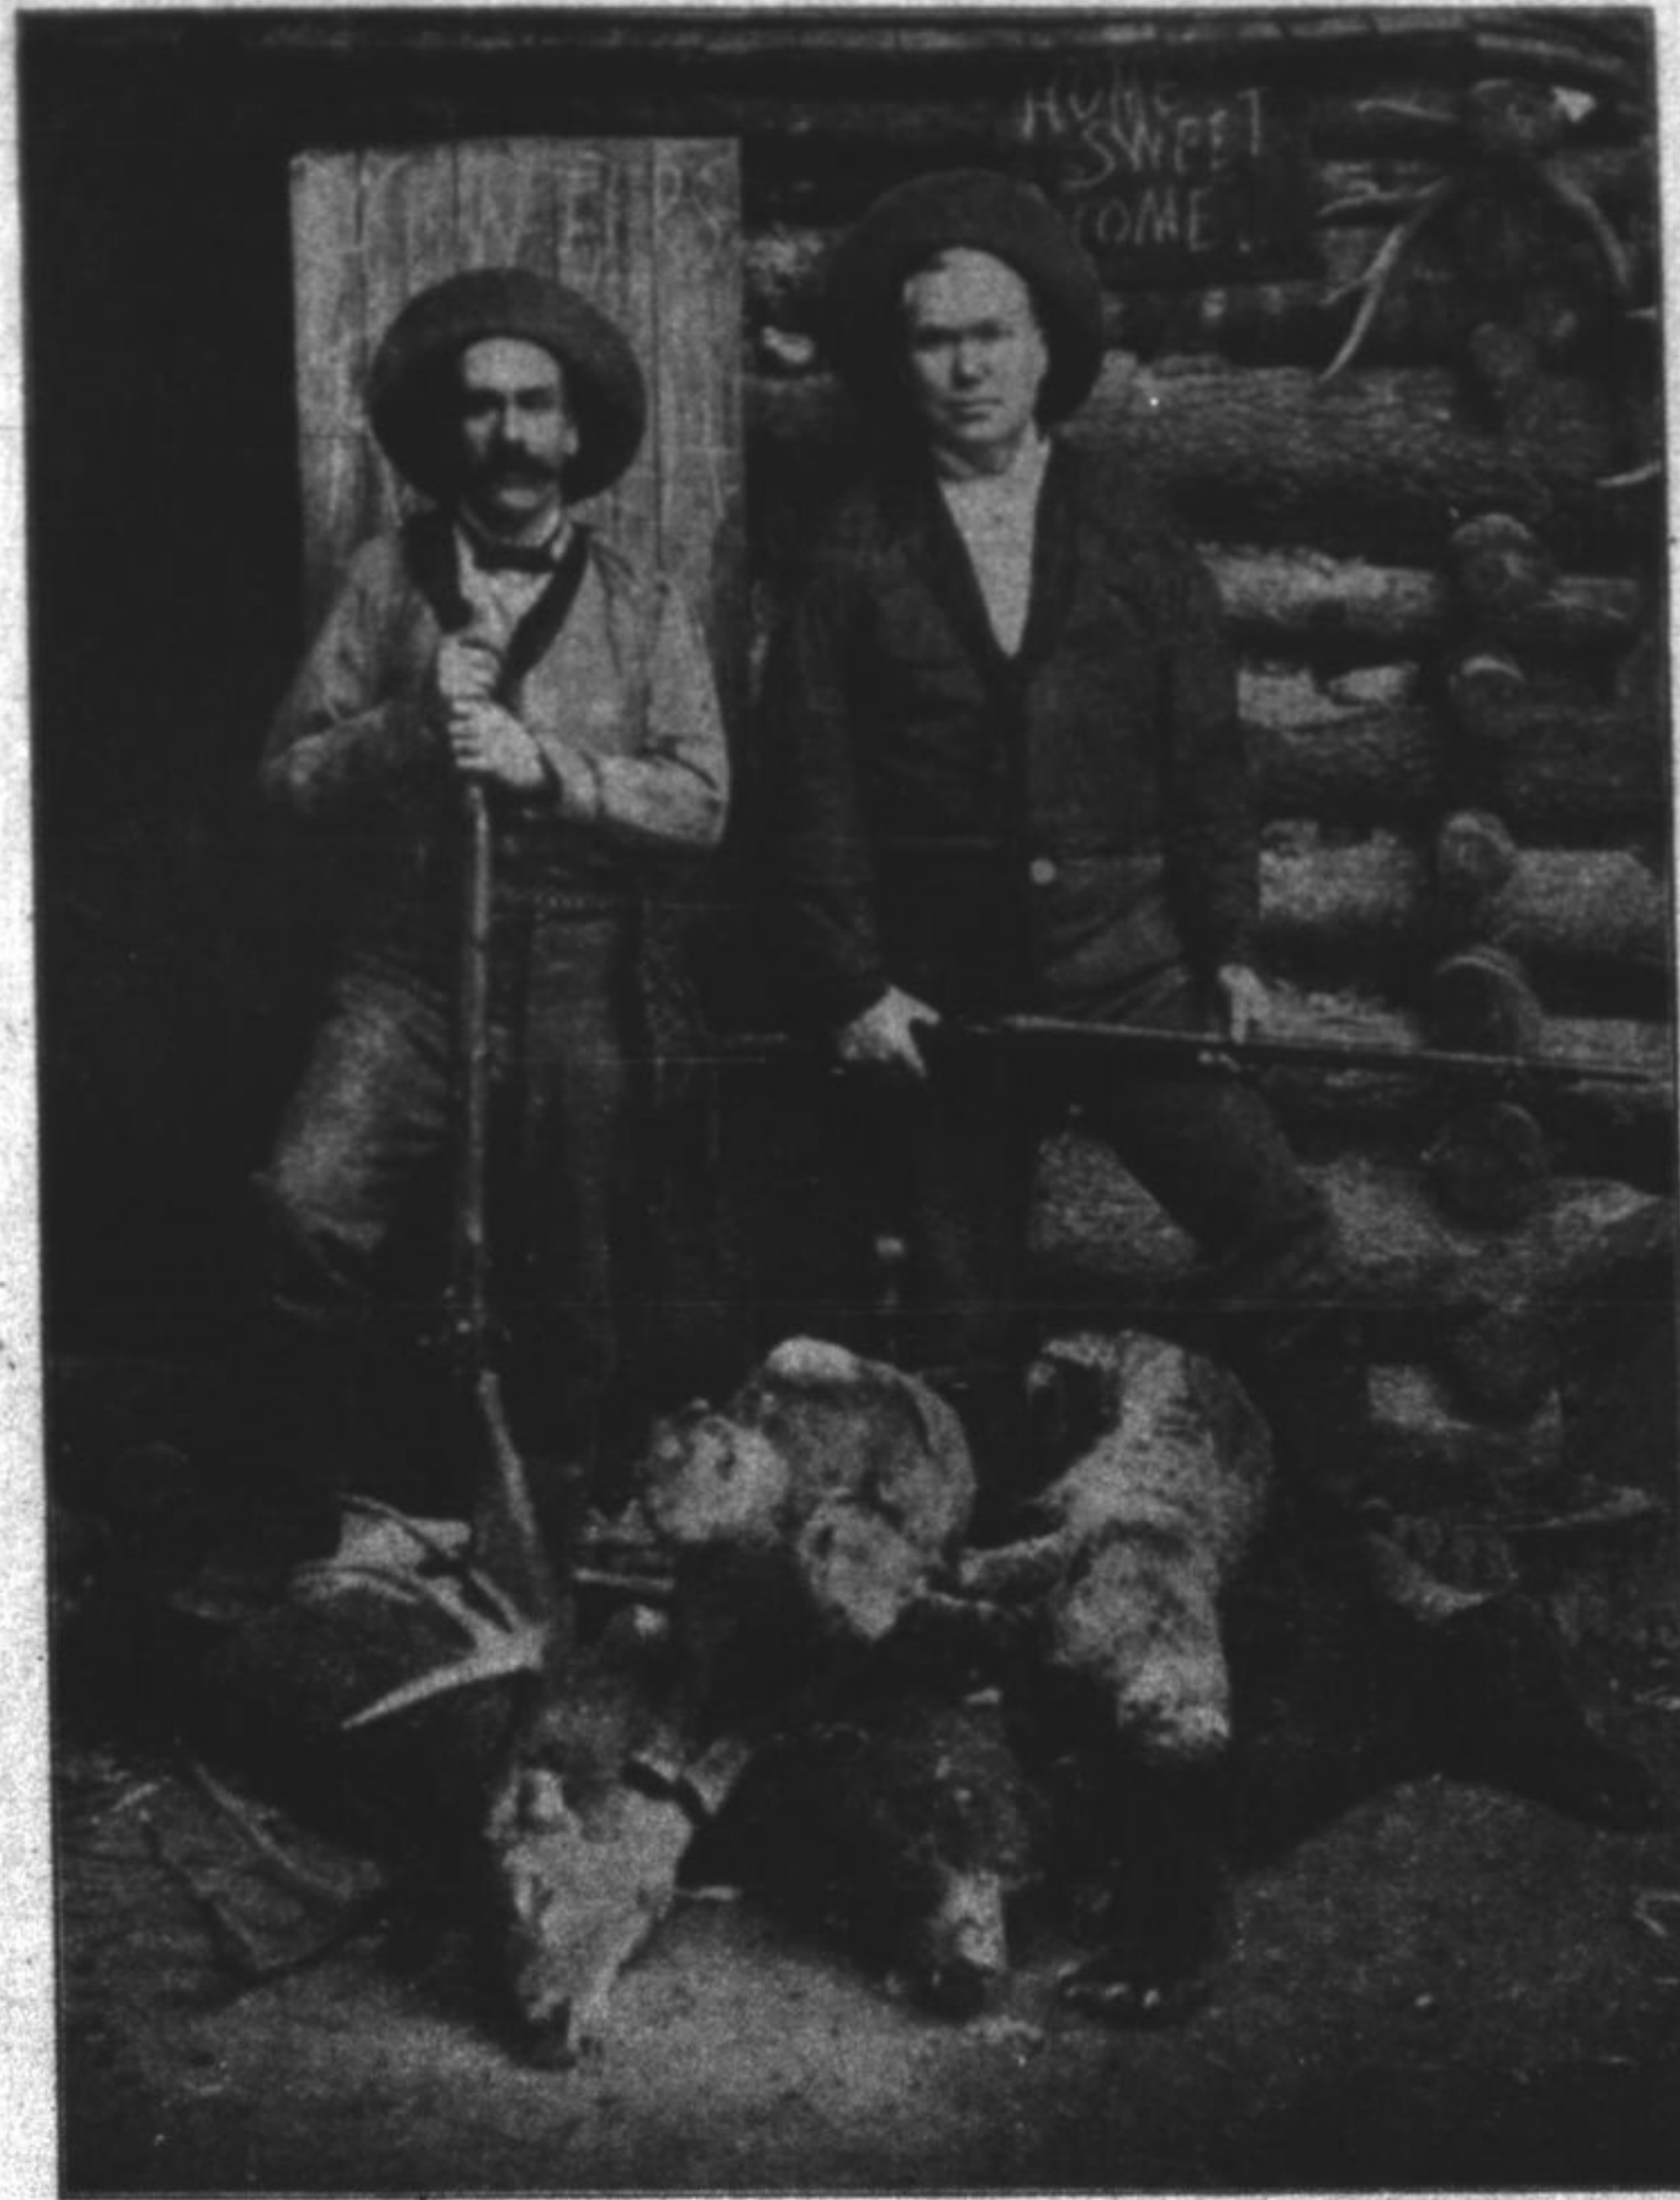

Koshkonong lake is 111 miles from Chicago; reached by the Wisconsin division of the C. & N. W. R. R. The nearest station is Fort Atkinson, seven miles up the river, from where the club member can find easy transportation to their sequestered home, either by launch or by bus line. The lake is nine miles in width and fifteen long and hunters come from as far north as Minneapolis to enjoy the unexcelled duck shooting. The well known Black Hawk Gun Club of Milwaukee has its substantial club house within a few hundred feet of the Park club. The club house is well built having good bed-rooms for those of the members who go in the middle of the summer for the fishing and each member will have a locker in the basement room where the boats are also kept, the water reaching the lower part of the building on the front. There will be good spring beds, the members taking their own bedding. The club house will also contain a large and comfortable sitting room. Surely the members have some good sport ahead of them this year in such a hunter's paradise.

The club membership is limited to twenty five members, and there are now twenty four names enrolled. Mr. W. B. White is president, Mr. S. F. Knox, vice president and attorney; and Mr. D. C. Purdy, secretary and treasurer. The other members are; George Hesler, W. J. Obee, C. P. Sullivan, Thos. Morton, the quality of the service is unsurpassed. Modern day coaches and luxurious sleeping cars contribute to the comfort of passengers, while unexcelled dining cars cater to the tastes of the most exacting. *2
