ARRESTED THE SOLDIER

City Marshal Leesch on Sunday last was told by several persons that six or seven soldiers from Fort Sheridan were riding up and down certain streets in the Park at a fast pace and frightening people by dashing up on to the sidewalks and trying to run them down. Mr. Leesch was at first inclined to believe the stories exaggerated and that the soldiers were not acting as badly as had been represented. But it was not long before he saw them in front of Freberg's and saw their attempt to ride down Mr. Nelson, the tailor. Mr. Leesch then started after the somewhat intoxicated proteges of Uncle Sam, ordering them to halt. They replied to his command with curses and rode away. He then leaped into one of Mr. Freberg's rigs and started in pursuit. The soldiers saw the marshal's rig was too swift for them and after firing a shot at him, separated, thinking to confuse their pursuer and thus escape. But Mr. Leesch had picked the man he intended to arrest and stuck to him, firing twice into the ground and several times to hit, badly confusing and causing him to leave the road and turn into an unfenced lot at the rear of Captain Morgan's home. He was finally brought up against a barbed wire fence which his horse refused to jump and the result was his capture by Mr. Leesch, who rode up and said, while taking the soldier in custody: "It was not my fault I missed you." Mr. Leesch's good work—not only of Sunday last, but since his appointment a year ago—shows him to be a fearless, alert, judicious and painstaking officer,—the right man in the right place. Never has the Park had a more efficient man than Mr. Leesch. The citizens and the NEWS-LETTER are proud of him.

Mr. W. C. Stubbs undoubtedly appreciated something the cadets did on election day. While the good and eagle eyed colonel was down town electioneering, the cadets thought if he could play in duty hours they would do the same. So they hoisted a lovely white banner of immense size to the top of the Academy flag-pole. Col. Davidson returning from working in behalf of Mr. Stubb's competitor, beheld the coy breezes flaunting defiantly; the startling advice in goodly sized letters, "Vote for W. C. Stubbs for alderman." No wonder Mr. Patton was defeated.

"Yes," said the real estate man, "I can sell you anything in that block at $80 a front foot." "Great Jupiter," replied the man in search of a bargain, "can't you sell me something by the hind foot!"
