THE GREAT TASMAN GLACIER.

Mr. Henry D. Lloyd, the Winnetkaite who is making a tour of New Zealand, gives this interesting account of his trip through the mountain regions of that remote continent:

Lake Putaki. March 7.— We have seen today one of the great sights in scenery that the world has to show—Mount Cook, of about the height of Gray's Peak, but much more imposing, as the snow line is so much lower, — and we have seen it in the most sublime aspect one can see a mountain. We drove towards it for hours seeing nothing, but as the sun got into the west the clouds began to roll away uncovering the snow-covered flanks, and then, the clouds still lying in great masses against the middle of the mountain, we were conscious that something great had
