

Particulars as to today's picnic in next week's NEWS-LETTER.

The Misses Scott of Chicago are boarding with Judge Hibbard during June.

The Highland Park Club has a director's meeting on Monday evening next.

Mr. C. M. Hewitt of Chicago has rented the S. W. James place for the summer.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies's Aid Society of the Presbyterian Hospital will be held next Monday in Chicago in the chapel of the hospital.

The petition of many property owners and residents of the Park asking the city to open up Vine avenue across the railroad tracks will be presented to the council next Tuesday evening, and it is the general hope of the community that this desired improvement may be made possible. The railroad would, doubtless, prefer to put a subway under the tracks at this point rather than be compelled to maintain a grade crossing there permanently. It seems strange that the Park has gone as long as it has without a crossing between the electric light station and Highwood.

If the elements are propitious two hundred poor children of the Chicago settlement will have an opportunity today of breathing the fresh country air at the old picnic grounds, and of having a day of sunshine and frolic under the beautiful trees near the lake bluff. The Ossoli Club of Highland Park will make it a day of complete happiness to the little city children—a day of flower-picking in the big ravines; of freedom from the smoke and noise of the city, so that when at nightfall the little ones go back to their Chicago homes many a cheek will retain a healthful glow bestowed by a day spent under blue skies, and many an eye will reflect the perfect happiness so rarely experienced by these little waifs. And these memories for a long time to come, one can believe, will be cherished by these children whose early years are not as full of joy as childhood should be. The Ossoli Club is to be congratulated on this the latest and most practical good work accomplished by the organization.

Golf at Onwentsia Saturday last attracted an unusually large number of members and guests. The course was in splendid condition and the day an ideal one for golf. Mr. W. A. Alexander, who had in the morning won the Exmoor trophy for best score, played in remarkable form for so early in the season and won the first prize at Onwentsia in the afternoon matches. His handicap made Mr. Alexander's net score the best of the day. Peter Walker, the club professional, went the course of eighteen holes in 75, which ties the record made over the same course by James Anderson.
