The provision of the bicycle ordinance forbidding their use on the sidewalks is in operation after the first of June.

The flag which usually graces the staff at the fountain corner on Decoration Day was conspicuous by its absence. Probably a case of invalidism.

Mrs. Lewis Day and daughters, Blanche and Dorothy, returned Monday from Colorado Springs, where they had spent the past three months.

Mr. Larson's Glencoe pupils in music joined with his Winnetka pupils in a musicale held at Mr. Hyde's residence in Winnetka Saturday of last week.

Mr. Muzzey, father of Mrs. A. M. Tipton, was taken with a congestive chill Monday and at the time this paragraph is written continues to be seriously ill.

Mr. Henry Witt and Mr. Jacob Beck of North Vernon avenue have been recently grading and otherwise improving their premises. Mr. Beck has built a superior wire fence entirely around his property, a length of 1100 feet.

The Glencoe Juniors are rapidly making a record for themselves. So far they have defeated every team which has been hazardous enough to challenge them. On Saturday of last week and Tuesday of this they played the S. C. C. Caddies. The score was: Saturday, Glencoe 23, Caddies 18; Tuesday, Glencoe 13, Caddies 5. They are still looking for fresh fields to conquer, and the proverbial chip is carried jauntily on the shoulder.

At a meeting of the Women's Reading Club Thursday afternoon of last week the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. S. R. Hurford; vice-president, Mrs. John Parry; second vice-president, Mrs. C. H. Howard; secretary, Miss Wright; treasurer, Mrs. G. J. Case; librarian, Mrs. Ashbel Ligare. A line of study was laid out for the year: From September to January, "Russia;" January, "American Fiction;" February, "English Modern Fiction;" March, "Sociology;" April, "Education;" May, "Nature." The ladies hope to make this year interesting and profitable.

Indignation Meeting at Glencoe.

Last Sunday night at midnight on the plaza at Park and Vernon avenues the Glencoe dogs held a meeting to resent some scurrilous doggerel recently published and for the consideration of other grievances.

Jerry Flanders-Dopfer, Esq., by reason of his dignified presence, was called to preside. He took his place on the platform of Clemens Dopfer's meat shop, supported by vice-presidents: Dictatory McLeish, Sandy Fuller, Lion Schweiger, Prince Ratsenkatz-Harkey, "Sport" Murdow and Carter Harrison Law and Fogel Howard. The stand was also graced by the presence of Mesdames Judy Day, Bessie and Baby Brewster, Mandatory McLeish and Gipse Tipton.

Miss Tipton was requested to act as secretary and reporter for the meeting.

President Jerry, in a few basso profundo remarks, explained the object of the meeting. Personally, he had little to complain of. His master provided him generously with lamb chops and tenderloin steaks, plenty of icewater in hot weather, and seldom restrained him of his liberty; but he knew many were less fortunate and he was ready to lift his voice in their behalf. Like Brutus, he was not an orator and would leave to the more gifted the elucidation of the wrongs suffered by their downtrodden race.

He introduced Sandy Fuller, Esq., who came forward with his accustomed smile and a graceful sweep of his handsome brush. Sandy said he was no great howler himself, and of domestic griefs he had none. He was fuller fed than many of his neighbors, and he felt it his duty to voice their wrongs rather than his own. It was true some of their people were liable to be a little too loquacious on pleasant moonlit nights, but God had made them that way, and if their "deep-mouthed baying welcome home" were wholly silenced, it would be missed by many who liked to hear it. But among their entire colony there was not one either guilty or capable of such squawks, such whoops, howls and cat-calls as were to be heard from boys outside of school hours down to 10 o'clock at night, calling and answering one another from different and distant parts of the village, like Iroquois Indians on a war-path. And then the daily riot and racket on the ball-grounds near the Manse! "Compared with this," he said, "our nocturnal concerts are a golden silence." Another thing: he lived in the neighborhood of a pair of Mexi-
