

GOLF NOTES.

The Exmoor Club will have a Woman's Tournament, Monday week, the 17th, of which particulars will be given next week.

Of the widespread interest in the Onwentsia tournament we note the fact that the Springfield (Mass.) Republican gives nearly a column report each day, and the bulletin boards of Picadilly and Pall Mall, London, England, report the results, which are eagerly scanned by thousands.

The golf tournament Tuesday, the Fourth, on the Exmoor golf links for the $200 cup presented by Mr. Moore was an exciting as well as interesting game in spite of the weather. We do not recollect for years so unpropitious a Fourth, but the golfers paid no more attention to the rain than the robbers do. If it came down in too heavy torrents they spread an umbrella, while their friends tramped over the two miles round the field similarly protected. The playing as a whole was fine, and it became evident early in the day that Mr. W. C. Scott of this city had his eye on that cup, and was playing with excellent stroke and steady nerve. Mr. Scott's handicap was 40, and the score 166.

In spite of three rainy days this week, the national tournament on the Onwentsia links, at Lake Forest, has been a magnificent success. Leading players from all over the country have been there. The playing has been fine, surpassing the expectations of the most enthusiastic friends of the game. There have been surprises every day, and broken records not a few, and for a twelvemonth names will be on every golfer's lips who were never heard of away from home before this week. Village Hampdens have come to the fore at Onwentsia who will not soon be forgotten. Then the hospitality of Lake Forest has been most generous; that's the Forest style. Millionaires abound there, elegant homes not a few, with cultured and refined people, make it an ideal community for such a tournament, and as the crowning result Onwentsia's fame will cover the continent and go to foreign lands wherever the game has admirers and devotees.

A first class watchmaker will repair your watch at Schneider & Cooke's. All work guaranteed.

Mrs. F. K. Stauffer and son of Chattanooga, Tenn., were visitors at Rev. A. Haefele's one day this week. They were delighted with Highland Park.

Special inducements are offered by Schneider & Cooke to those in want of engraved invitations, cards, etc. Cards printed from plates.
