

A New Bank.

The Highland Park bank will open for business on Monday, Oct. 2, 1899, in the commodious and centrally located quarters, No. 1, South Saint Johns avenue, in this city. This place has been fitted with a fine large bank vault ever since the building was first erected and it has been the remark and wonder of the public generally that a bank has not long before this taken advantage of this fact and established itself here. Many additional modern appliances, particularly adapted to banking will be added to the bank's equipment.

The Highland Park bank commences business with ample capital to meet the demands of the community. It will do a general banking business. Its customers' checks will be payable through the Chicago Clearing House, without exchange and hence will be as current funds in Chicago as here. The bank is under control of men long and favorably known in our city, and has as its active business manager, Mr. David A. Holmes, who has for the past thirty years been identified with the interests of Highland Park and the surrounding section of country, and for the past several years been connected with the principal financial institutions in Highland Park, in a very prominent capacity. Mr. Holmes is an expert accountant, brings to the business a vast fund of experience and is well known as a very systematic business man of approved integrity. We feel certain he will command the respect and enlist the confidence of the public generally. This community has for a long time past felt the need of a banking institution in its midst, and it now appears as if the long hoped for relief was approaching. We wish the new bank a long and successful career.
