

Ravinia.

The particulars of Mr. Pritchard's resignation from the station agency were not given right last week, and to do Mr. Pritchard justice your correspondent corrects the item which appeared in last week's issue. In an interview with Mr. Pritchard he tells us that his trip to Chicago and return was voluntary on his part, he having gone to the city to visit his mother; also his working balance in cash has always been on hand since he has held the position as agent. Mr. Pritchard's resignation was perfectly honorable and was due mainly to his inability to secure satisfactory board and room in Ravinia, and was not because of the cold weather. The fact that he is now stopping at the Railway Men's home is a decided guarantee as to his honest handling of the railway money. We are sorry that the item of last week misrepresented Mr. Pritchard as it did.

Mrs. Willey of Winnetka was visiting at Ravinia on Sunday.

Ravinia is to have a new station agent—the assistant baggage-master at Glencoe.

Friday night the public school gave a Christmas entertainment, the report of which is too late for this issue.

Everyone should get a new Chicago & Northwestern time card, as the Ravinia issue has been reprinted showing the 6:30 trains.

Dr. Gross had a severe attack of tonsillitis last week. He adjourned school early Friday afternoon. At this writing he is able to attend to his work.

Another, and it is said, the last, load of machinery, was shipped from the factory last Saturday. Families connected with the factory still continue leaving Ravinia.

Mr. J. C. Coe's funeral, conducted at the Park Presbyterian church, was largely attended by Ravinia people. Mr. H. R. Boemer secured contributions from the people of this burg with which a beautiful floral design was purchased. Other floral decorations were numerous. The ex-pastor of Ravinia church, because of Mr. Coe's previous request, preached the funeral sermon. Mr. Coe's son Schuyler, from California, was in attendance at the funeral.

Miss "Diola" Dead.

The many friends of Miss Diola F. Wagner regret to learn of her death at her home, 1111 North Halsted street, Chicago. The deceased had suffered six weeks with typhoid fever, and died Monday morning, in her nineteenth year. Her remains was entered in a vault at Rose Hill Wednesday.

MISS DIOLA F. WAGNER.

Miss Diola was termed "the sweet singer." At Fort Sheridan Park she drew some of the largest houses during the first of the season and not satisfied with one engagement she returned for the second. She gained many friends through her pleasant and pleasing manner and her many friends here extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Richard Shannon died suddenly last Saturday, Dec. 18. Mrs. Shannon had not been well for past year but death was unexpected at this time. She was well known for her charitable deeds. The community extend their sympathy to the bereaved husband and two sons, Prof. Samuel Pease is at home for the holidays.

Arrived, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, a baby girl.

Miss Mae and Eddie Welch are home for the holidays.

Mrs. B. Fritsch is almost well again after quite a severe illness.

Mrs. C. A. Coolidge has left for Detroit to spend the holidays with relatives.

Mrs. P. W. Warner died on Wednesday and was buried in Lake Forest on Friday.

Her many friends are sorry that rheumatism has Miss Della Breakwell in its clutches.

Miss Anna Mueller of Roseland was a guest of Miss De Roo for several days of last week.

Mr. Breakwell has not been heard from yet and the firm name has been changed to Elizabeth Grant.

Evening services at the M. E. church have been changed to 6:30 p. m., for Epworth League meeting and 7:30 p. m., for regular evening services. These hours will continue until further notice. Everybody is invited to attend this service.

Tuesday last was held what might be called a remnant sale—or in other words—an auction of the goods left over from the bazaar, which under the hammer of the able Mr. Winters, were very well disposed of. After the auction coffee and cake were indulged in. The exact amount of proceeds from bazaar and auction is at present writing not known, but will be published in next week's issue.

Last Thursday and Friday were red letter days for the ladies sewing circle of Highwood M. E. church. The bazaar for which the ladies have been working came off, and a rousing good time was enjoyed. The church was very prettily and tastefully decorated. The candy booth called forth many compliments. The back ground of the booth was an old fashioned brick chimney, with the regulation high shelf, candle stick and all, even to several stockings hung up waiting for Santa Claus' coming visit. Two tables filled with delicious home made candy and with several of the prettiest girls in town behind the tables—no wonder the candy sold out so fast.
