David A. Holmes reached home Monday morning in season to pay the school ma'ams before Decoration Day and see Erskine's new bank.
Mr. Frank Schultz spent Sunday with his former schoolmate, Fred C. Norenberg, and took back with him a number of views of our beautiful city.

The Daughters of the American Revolution presented a picture of "George Washington Bidding Farewell to His Generals", last week to the High School. Miss La Bar, the chapter's regent, made the presentation speech which was answered by Professor Wilson.

The Chicago bankers shut up shop Decoration day, but we notice D. M. Erskine kept open offices that day. He had to of course, not only from business considerations but to give the old ladies from Highwood a place to sit and rest till the electric car came along. David looks out for the friendless and the needy.

Pastor Hewitt of East Benton, the Zion that is to be, told us he had over thirty young men in his Sunday morning congregations and yet there is no village there, more than at Prairie. Lots of them ride in on a wheel and after church and Sunday school go to their homes or perhaps to the homes of some Benton maidens to dinner. Benton is a part of "God's own country."

Mrs. Elisha Gray gave a few of her old friends the pleasure of a cup of tea with herself and daughters, Mrs. Stubbs and Mrs. Everett. The ladies were reminded of the many pleasant hours they have enjoyed in Prof. Gray's hospitable home, and they had the pleasure of visiting all the rooms which have been so beautifully decorated. Every room shows Mrs. Gray's fine artistic taste. It is one of the prettiest homes in our city. What a pleasure it would be to have Prof. and Mrs. Gray occupy it this summer; but as his interests will keep him in Boston for the present Mrs. Gray feels that she prefers to be with him.

Advertising don't tell you that, at once. But in a recent issue James McDonald put in a five or six line ad. of a lawn mower and an ice box and inside of 30 hours had sold both of them; but of course he made a mistake; better have kept them all summer and saved a quarter for that ad.

Mr. John Moller, Uncle Sam's census enumerator, began his work yesterday. You can all him all the family secrets, as he is sworn to absolute secrecy, and we shall not know officially how many folks there are in town for many months yet. Meantime the town will keep on growing in population, wealth, wisdom and prosperity.

The entertainment and bazar by Mrs. Laughray and her pupils Friday afternoon of last week, was a success. The exercises were very pretty, and the little ones did well. The only thing lacking was the candy supply.

The public school observed Decoration day on Tuesday afternoon, with appropriate exercises and music. Rev. M. W. Darling talked to the children and gave them some ideas of a soldier's life in camp and on the march. The Glencoe band very kindly furnished the music. After the exercises the band was served with refreshments, furnished by Miss Love and the 8th grade.

The town meeting met at the village hall, Friday evening of last week, with Arthur Day presiding. The subject under discussion was whether the meeting should become an organized club. Mr. Andrew McLeish read a very carefully prepared paper on the subject, putting forth the advantages of an organized society. The committee for the ensuing three months are, Messrs. M. B. Orde, J. J. Fanning, H. P. Williams, Mrs. B. Newhall, Mrs. C. Allison.

Benton Revisited.
We spent Sunday last in our old Sunday-school work in Benton, and put in a morning, helped in the afternoon, and filled the evening service under the direction of Mr. Baird, the local minister. The exercises were in the North Prairie church, and west three miles from the new Winthrop Harbor station. Taking the "Syndicate," as they call it, headed by Mr. Van Vlis-singen, the Chicago real estate man, and "Zion," Bro. Dowie's scheme, they own about half of the town of Benton. This land takes all in between Waukegan and the Wisconsin line, and goes back three to four miles from the lake. The east half of the town is all gone—sold out to the Syndicate, or Zion. On the Syndicate tract a dozen houses are going up; a land office, one or two big factory buildings; streets are being opened, etc. Will the boom last, or will it be Ravinia once again? Zion is not so far along.

At the church we put in two hours or more speech-making, and yet they said, "Come again," and not one of them was from Vermont! One man came up to us after service and said, "Don't let the stuff published about you in one of the Waukegan papers, trouble you; we all know it is false; it won't hurt you any." We told him we lost no sleep over the matter.

We never heard better suggestions about real practical primary Sunday-school work than the brief addresses of Mrs. C. E. Howe and Mrs. G. W. Truesdell, and Deacon Griffin had a capital address, emphasizing the fact that the true Sunday school is the church working in Bible study; the church and school are really one organization, working in different ways and fields at different hours. A heavy shower came up just as people would start for evening service, but the Bentonians filled the house. There is no village there, the meeting house, school house, wood and horse sheds—that's all at a "four corners," but it is a church-going people.

We fared sumptuously every day there. Every farmer keeps a dairy, and we had plenty of fresh, sweet, golden yellow butter, and the best bread we ever ate. They bought their flour at Conrad's, in Waukegan, and yeast foam, and "kneaded thoroughly"—that was the secret. Benton housewives can cook "like mother did," and the appetite of our boyhood days came back to us. God made the country, and lots of the folks out there are his children, too, and we love them, though they are bronzed in the sun.

We see no more papers and books, magazines, etc., in the homes in this city than we saw there, and we did not see a boy or young man smoking or hear a profane word, or any approach to misconduct while in the town. Score one for Benton and its good people.
